Fin. Com. Calls Mayor's Brother

FACES QUIZ ON CODMAN CONTRACTS

Attorney Edmund R. Mansfield, brother of the mayor, has been secretly subpoenaed in the Boston Finance Commission investigation of the alleged $70,000 "gift contracts" let by the White Fund, it was learned today.

This is the probe centering about affairs of the Codman Hill Construction company whose books disappeared from the automobile of one of the company's officers on May 4.

A summons ordering Attorney Mansfield to appear before counsel for the Finance Commission was issued quietly on Saturday night but the constable charged with its service was unable to find the mayor's brother, he reported.

FACES WHITE FUND QUIZ

The summons demands that Attorney Mansfield present himself before George R. Farnum, special counsel for the commission, by tomorrow morning.

The questioning, it was said, would be directed toward what knowledge, if any, Attorney Mansfield has of the letting of the contracts by the White Fund.

Some $70,000 was spent to waterproof certain buildings in Back Bay and other sections. These buildings are property of the White Fund.

Mayor Mansfield himself, in Los Angeles at a conference of mayors of United States cities, was not reached for comment on this latest development.

MAYOR'S STAND

Previously, however, he has branded the investigation and charges as "absurd," maintaining the alleged favoritism in letting the contracts did not exist.

The mayor maintained that the Codman Hill company won the contracts because the work was of an emergency nature and this company was best qualified to do it.

Appearing before Judge Harold P. Williams today in superior court, Attorney Farnum and Secretary Robert Cunniff obtained an order of notice, requiring two officials of the construction company to appear Friday and show cause why the concern's books should not be produced.

The order was issued by Judge Williams against Thomas J. Flanagan, director and accountant of the company, and William J. Driscoll, president and treasurer.

Several days ago the books were reported to have been stolen from Flanagan's automobile after he had attended a party at a police sergeant's home in Dorchester.

Jury Named to Try 2 in Axe Killing

Jersey City, N. J., May 17 (INS)—A jury of 12 men was chosen today to try Gladys MacKnight, 17, and Donald Wightman, 18, for the "flaming youth" murder of the girl's mother, Mrs. Helen MacKnight, who was bludgeoned to death with an axe in the kitchen of her home last July 31.

The jury was selected in one hour and ten minutes, almost record-time.

It was a "Snyder-Gray" trial. Gladys was pictured as the dominant one of the pair on trial. Prosecutor Daniel T. O'Regan was expected to contend that Gladys had wielded the hatchet, while Wightman held her mother's arms, crying: "Hit her again!"

STATE FINDS SIX SCHOOLS 'FIRE TRAPS'

Filed for nearly two weeks but never given out, a State Department of Public Safety report, it was learned today by the Boston Evening American, warns Cambridge school authorities that many of the schools in that city are fire traps.

If recommendations contained in the report are carried out, one school will be closed entirely and five others will undergo extensive safety alterations.

Practically every school in the city will be altered to meet the safety recommendations.

Schools named in the report include the Webster grade school, Taylor primary school, Cambridge High and Latin school, the Harvard school and Rindge Tech.

BUILT 85 YEARS

Fire or any other major catastrophe would trap nearly 250 pupils of the ancient Webster school, according to the report. One of the chief targets of the state investigation is this school, built nearly 85 years ago.

The investigation, conducted un-

Barber Presented Harvard Medal

Tokyo, May 17 (AP)—A poor barber who dabbles in astronomy in his spare moments was presented the Pickering gold medal of Harvard University today for discovery of a new star.

The U. S. Ambassador presented the medal to Kazukai Gomi for his discovery of Nova Lacertae, June 18, 1936, during the total eclipse of the sun.

SECURITY ACT RULING IS DELAYED

Washington, May 17 (AP)—The Supreme Court failed today to pass on constitutionality of the Federal Social Security Act.

Before adjourning until next Monday it announced opinions in nine cases. The Social Security decision will be delivered either next Monday or on Tuesday, June 1, when the court adjurns for the summer.

The major decision today upheld provisions of the 1936 revenue act berring refund of $963,000,000 of processing adn floor stock taxes collected under the invalidated agricultural adjustment act unless the tax payee proved tha the bore the cost himself.

Another decision held constitutional was a 1934 Louisiana statute imposing a graduated license tax on chain stores, based on the number of units operated throughout the state and elsewhere.

Yacht Blast Victim Is Dead

Wellington Richardson, 65, of 264 St. Botolph street, Back Bay, died today at Quincy City Hospital, marking the second fatality out of an explosion aboard the 89-foot pleasure yacht Mariette on May 7, as it was in Quincy drydock.

Shortly after the explosion and fire, the yacht's second mate, Henry De Wolfe, 89, of West Newton, died at the same hospital.

BULLETIN

Monts, France, May 17 (AP)—Heavy rain kept the Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Warfield indoors at their chateau retreat today, and the ex-King cancelled a scheduled golf game. Their wedding date was expected to be announced tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. (9:30 a. m., E. S. T.)

London, May 17 (AP) — The British press today brought out into the open the controversy over a royal recognition of Mrs. Wallis Warfield by a controversy of its own over the possibility of formal announcement of her engagement to the Duke of Windsor by King George VI himself.

While the Sunday Referee reported the King was ready to extend the royal family's sanction of the match by announcing the betrothal of his brother and the woman for whom Edward gave up his throne, the Express said such a move was impossible.

"Ecclesiastical objections" to Mrs. Warfield as a twice-divorced person, the Express said, prevented the King from taking 'any such action.

The Sunday Referee, which has not always been correct in its information concerning the abdicated monarch and his American fiancee, predicted King George would announce his brother's en-

MOTHER SOBS CONFESSION IN KILLING

BULLETIN

New York, May 17 (INS) — Breaking under police grilling, Mrs. Helen Tiernan, 28, confessed today to the murder of her eight-year-old daughter, Helen, victim in Long Island's grisly "babes-in-the-woods" murder. The young mother was on the point of collapse as she sobbed out her gruesome story.

New York, May 17 (INS)—Mrs. Helen Tiernan, 28, widowed mother of the two victims of Long Island's "babes-in the wood" torch murder mystery, today told police a strange man had attacked her and beat and kicked her children.

The eldest child, seven-year-old Helen, was fatally wounded in the brutal attack. Her five-year-old brother, JJames, although critically hurt, survived—to relate a version of the crime that differed from his mother's.

The mother said she had taken the children to Brookhaven, L. I., by train for a picnic, but when she returned today to the West Side day nursery where they had been kept she said she had left them in a Long Island home.

FLED WITH CHILDREN

It was while "picking flowers," she said, that their assailant drew up in a car. He attacked her first and began kicking the children when they screamed.

The man disappeared into the woods with the two children, and she fled, she said, returning to New York by train.

Other police, meanwhile, were

RUMBLINGS OF NEAR REVOLT HEARD IN CONGRESS

LEADERS WANT ROOSEVELT TO TELL EXACT PLANS

By GENE ROBB
Special to Boston Evening American.

Washington, May 17—The Congress, privately nettled and publicly restive, will plead this week with President Roosevelt to state definitely what he wants and when he wants it.

Today, in an atmosphere rife with pro and con rumors of NRA and AAA revival, even the leaders honestly do not know. Rumblings of an impending revolt, however, have more noise than substance.

Court enlargement issue—which opponents may succeed in pushing temporarily in the background—is the principal obstacle to action on other phases of the 1937 program. But contrary to previous antics when the President has been away, Congress has not voted against White House wishes. It simply has not voted at all.

STABILIZED PRICES

Some sort of price stabilization policy, pledged last week by the President for farm products, is expected to extend to industry and business—but possibly not before next year.

The New Deal is attempting to walk the tight-rope fence between unchecked competition and price fixing, both out of favor. In talking prices, emphasis will be placed on protecting the consumer—for political purposes—and importance of regulation to head off a boomerang boom.

ANTI-TRUST LAWS

Closely tied to price regulation is revision of anti-trust laws, sought by the Justice Department but held back pending further study. Present requirement that damage to competitors must be proved to support anti-trust action is the chief bone of contention.

This provision is up for elimination both in trust-busting cases and in prosecutions against unfair business practices by the Trade Commission. "Against the public interest" philosophy is being substituted for "unfair competition."

MINIMUM WAGES

Sources close to the administration insist a minimum wage proposal will be forthcoming from the White House—probably before the court issue is settled, possibly within the next fortnight.

Failure of Congress to evince interest in the half dozen minimum wage recipes already in the hopper is evidence of its firm belief that the President will point the way.

A national board to work out flexible scales among different industries and to make sectional allowances is still regarded as the most likely recommendation.

ELLENBOGEN NRA

Hearings on the Ellenbogen bill to impose a "baby N. R. A." on the textile industry are failing to excite labor. Only Sidney Hillman has testified. Contrary to supporters' expectations, he failed to endorse the bill, insisted that provisions for a 40-hour $15 week be amended to a 35-hour week and an $18 minimum.

He expressed no interest in the feature of the measure which allows the industry to write a code of its own under direction of a three-man board. A score of textile leaders take the stand this coming week to present industry's point of view.

CHILD LABOR BAN

After one day's testimony on the Wheeler-Johnson bill to control child labor through state laws, senate committee hearings were adjourned to the call of Chairman Wheeler. A week ago, he indicated hearings would be held regardless of White House wishes.

Now the sudden postponement of anticipated fireworks raises a belief that President Roosevelt will advocate federal legislation to ban child labor at the same time he advances wage-and-hour proposals.

PATMAN BILLS

Representative Patman, busy backstage with three important bills, soon will bid for the spotlight with at least two of them. Hearings begin this week on his measure to outlaw reciprocal sales agreements. Under this measure, dealers' purchases of one product could not be conditioned upon purchase of another product from another manufacturer. Patman cites gasoline and tire company tie-ups as an example of what he wants to prohibit.

His more far-reaching bill to have the Federal Reserve System transferred from member banks to the government is being redrafted. He declares at least 150 representatives will join him in its active support.

The Patman proposal to prohibit manufacturers from selling through their own retail outlets if they also sell to other retailers remains pigeonholed.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Not this session but possibly next, the vast Social Security Act is due for a thorough overhauling. First move in this direction is appointment by the Senate Finance Committee of 30 representatives of industry, labor and the public to make a complete study of the act and propose changes.

Reduction of the reserve fund, extension of Social Security principles to farmers and domestic servants, cuts in the graduated payroll taxes, and a more equitable distribution of benefit payments will be investigated.

Connery Attacks Court Plan Foes

Congressman William P. Connery, Jr., of Lynn, today assailed all opponents of the President's Supreme Court reorganization plan who claim that a constitutional amendment should prevail rather than a direct bill to increase the court.

Strongly in favor of the President's proposed court plan to increase the membership of the court, Connery declared at his Lynn home:

"There is a constitutional amendment ratified by three-quarters of the states that Congress shall have the power to levy taxes from whatever source derived.

"This bill, ratified by the states, became a law as an amendment to the Constitution. The first thing the Supreme Court did was to rule their own salaries could not be taxed for income tax.

"This refutes all arguments of opponents of the bill who claim that a constitutional amendment to increase the Supreme Court should prevail."

Key Witnesses In Zep Blast Inquiry

This picture was made during the Bureau of Air Commerce investigation at Lakehurst, N. J., into the Hindenburg disaster. It shows Commander C. V. S. Knox, at left, and F. von Meister, vice-president of the American Zeppelin Transport Company, as they talk with Hans Freund (bandaged). Freund was in the section of the giant Zep where explosion took place. His escape with only burns was a miracle.

ZEP CREW SURVIVOR BLAMES GAS CELL

Lakehurst, N. J., May 17 (AP)—One of the Hindenburg's riggers, who was on duty close to the spot where the destructive flames first burst forth from her stern, gave the Department of Commerce investigating board today his opinion that a gas cell started the disaster.

Hans Freund, the only one of the dirigible's three riggers to survive, was the first witness yet called, who was able to give any account of what took place in the stern when the fire and explosion occurred.

His story emphasized the speed and lack of warning which characterized the destruction of the dirigible.

STANDING IN FIRE

He had reached a station near the fins, he related, and was attempting to pay out a manila landing cable, when the disaster occurred.

"There was a muffled detonation and I was standing in fire," he related. "It went so quickly."

"I had the impression it was a gas cell," he added after saying he could not tell whether the flames enveloping him came from the forward or after direction.

Before that there was nothing wrong and landing preparations had proceeded in a normal manner, he said. The cable he was lowering had become temporarily fouled by the tail surfaces but that was not unusual and another member of the crew quickly got the cable clear.

Freund said he was one of the three men who inspected the dirigibles gas cells, but the other two perished in the disaster. He could not supply information on the gas level of the last cell in the stern at the trip's end, for he did not have the final watch on that duty.

SMELLED NO HYDROGEN

There was no hydrogen leak smelled during the voyage or landing maneuvers, he testified, and there was no other odor, such as burning wood or rubber.

He dismissed the possibility that a gas pocket could have been formed outside a cell. The ship's ventilation system prevented this, he said.

"Did you ever know of a gas cell valve sticking?"

"Yes, in the beginning of last year. I only had to pull at the valve slightly and it closed."

Mother Confesses She Murdered Daughter, 7

Jimmy said he saw his mother strike his sister.

Two men, he said, met them at the Brookhaven station with a blue car. He said they were his "two" fathers, "George" and "Carmen." They then went into the woods and feasted on ice cream.

Twenty-four hours later a horrified 16-year-old girl stumbled upon the body of a young girl lying face down in the blood-soaked grass.

BEATEN AND STABBED

The child had been bludgeoned with a hatchet, stabbed with scissors and then turned into a gasoline-soaked human torch. Jimmy was found by police nearby where he had been left for dead.

Identification through the nursery was established soon after.

Describing the train ride "to the country" and the ride in the "new blue car" to the woods, the boy said:

"JJoe did it. Mommy is hurt. A man hurt her."

He the ntold of seeing his mother strike his sister. His mother took off his coat and shoes, he said. Then he was beaten, but he couldn't tell by whom.

"Mommy and Dad and Helen and Joe and me were there," he reiterated. "Joe did it.

"George bought the ice cream," he whispered. "It was nice ice cream. We were eating it."

"George hit you?" 'a detective asked.

"Joe hit me," said the boy.

"Joe who?" asked the police.

But the boy couldn't tell.

Throats of both children had been slashed. Their clothing had been saturated with gasoline and then set afire. Burns caused the girl's death.

The boy, found about 100 feet from the girl's body by Mae Savage, 16, Brookhaven schoolgirl, and her companion, Warren Brady, 20, was rushed to Patchogue Hospital.

The shoes of both children had been removed, leading to the belief they were taken away to hide possible identification traces.

An earlier clue which aided the search for the mother was given in a story told by a brakeman.

Frank J. Brennan, a brakeman on the Long Island railroad, said a woman and two children boarded his train at Brooklyn Saturday morning and left it at Brookhaven.

The brakeman, who referred to Brookhaven as an unusual station, said the only other passengers alighting there Saturday were a summer resident and his wife. Police sought the couple for questioning.

WOMAN CARRIED BOX

He said the woman with the children carried a box 24 inches square. She was between 45 and 50 years old, wore glasses, a black coat with white neckpiece, and a black hat. He could not remember the color of her hair.

The train was crowded, he said, and the woman and the two children occupied one seat. Brennan was questioned on the train today by members of the Suffolk County district attorney's office.

NEGRIN HEADS 'WIN WAR' PLAN

Valencia, Spain, May 17 (AP)—Dr. Juan Negrin, Socialist former minister of the treasury, began today an effort to form Spain's sixth civil war government.

President Manuel Azana, called from virtual retirement to find a "win the war" government after Premier Francisco Largo Caballero was forced to resign, selected Dr. Negrin as premier-designate after he had talked with both the treasury minister and with Diego Martinez Barrio, president of Congress.

Largo Caballero, asked first to try a new government, failed to obtain the support of all parties.

Dr. Negrin, the new man of the hour, is 48 years old and a former professor of medicine in the University of Madrid.

Loyalists Block Advance on Bilbao

Bilbao, May 17 (AP)—Fighting hand to hand, Basque Loyalists blocked the insurgent advance against Bilbao today on the heights of Biscargi, about 10 miles east of here.

After hours of intense bombardment of the series of hills held by the enemy, the government troops went over the top to take one of the mountain strongholds at bayonet's point.

Carinthia Docks; Stinson Welcomed

Fifty passengers arrived here today from Ireland and England aboard the Cunard White Star Liner Carinthia which docked at East Boston before continuing on to New York.

Among the arrivals here were Frederick J. Stinson, former U. S. Ambassador to Argentine, and his wife.

They were met at the dock by President Emeritus A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard. Stinson resides at his Dedham estate, "Two Rivers."

Aboard ship, bound for New York, was Miss Agnes E. Slack, honorary secretary of the W. C. T. U., to attend a convention of that organization.

South Boston Pair Jailed for Holdup

Sentences to State Prison of five and eight years each were given to Peter Grealish, 23, and John N. Reagan, 24, both of South Boston, by Judge John F. Gibbs in Superior Court today.

They were arrested on April 1 after they had taken $200 in cash, at gun point, from Charles Stravin in his liquor store on L street, South Boston.

CHAIN STORES TAX UPHELD BY 4-3 DECISION

Washington, May 17 (AP)—The Supreme Court held constitutional today a 1934 Louisiana statute imposing a graduated license tax on chain stores based on the number of units operated throughout the nation and elsewhere.

A ruling by a three-judge federal district court at New Orleans sustaining the levy was affirmed. Justice Roberts delivered the 4 to 3 decision. Justices Sutherland, McReynolds and Butler dissented. Justices Vandevanter and Stone did not participate in the decision.

The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company and 12 other corporations attacked the law which levied taxes ranging from $10 to $550 per store.

Because it had 15,084 establishments throughout the nation and in Canada, the A. and P. Company said it was taxed $550 for each of its 106 stores in Louisiana. It added that one of its competitors, H. G. Hill stores, Inc., which operates 87 stores in New Orleans, has to pay only $30 per store.

ROBERTS READS DECISION

The A. and P. contended that if the act were upheld "the era of the national chain is over" and "it may perhaps also be said that the era of national corporations and of firms or individuals doing business in more than one state is over." It asserted that sustaining the levy would "open the door to the application of a similar theory to franchise, income and other taxes."

Roberts asserted that "the policy Louisiana is free to adopt with respect to the business activities of her own citizens she may apply to the citizens of other states who conduct the same business within her borders, and this irrespective of whether the evils requiring regulation arise solely from operations in Louisiana or are in part the result of extra-state transactions."

"It is not a denial of due process," he added, "to adjust such license taxes as are here involved to meet the local evil resulting from business practices and superior economic power even though those advantages and that power are largely due to the fact that the taxpayer does business not only in Louisiana but in other states."

MANY CONCERNS ACT

Justice Sutherland, in his dissent, said that "the exaction here involved is not a tax upon Louisiana property or business, but is essentially a penalty imposed upon an operator of business wholly beyond the reach of the law of that state."

"We are not able," he added, "to concede that it lies within the province of one state to thus indirectly penalize a method of doing business in another state, which it may be the policy of the latter to permit or, indeed, encourage."

A number of states have levied special taxes against chain stores, but they were based on the number of units operated within the state. The Supreme Court has upheld such taxes.

FIND SCHOOLS 'FIRE TRAPS'

der direction of Chief Investigator George C. Parsons, will result in a demand that the Cambridge school committee and the public buildings department make extensive alterations on the school property to protect the lives of boy and girl pupils.

These alterations would include installation of fire escapes, panic locks, fire doors and sprinklers and the removal of center stairways which, the report will say, probably would collapse under a rush of feet.

It was also learned the report, given to Secretary Edward J. O'Connell of the school committee and John J. Terry, public buildings superintendent, takes issue with a report on conditions at the school, made a year ago last fall.

CLAIM MANY IN PERIL

The city report, based on an investigation made by Deputy Fire Chief Arthur L. Marshall, said:

"School built in three sections . . . Oldest section built in 1853 . . . School can be cleared in two minutes . . . In the original school there are four wooden air ducts extending from roof to cellar. These ducts pass through two rooms each and as there are two openings in each room any fire in basement may travel easily from cellar to any room through which the duct passes."

The state report indicates that nothing ever was done to improve condition complained of in the city investigation.

In the school, which has a capacity of 944 pupils there are now 726 in attendance. A mass attempt to escape from fire would result in only 500 of the 726 youngsters succeeding, the state report declares.

"The present center stairway in the old building is useless as an egress," the report says significantly. "Its present condition is such that it is considered dangerous for use to its full capacity or for use in an emergency."

SENATORS PREDICT COURT SUBSTITUTE

Washington, May 17 (INS)—Despite President Roosevelt's pronounced opposition to any compromize of his Supreme Court bill, two administration Senators today predicted the Senate judiciary committee will report favorably a substitute measure tomorrow.

A hasty poll of the committee, however, indicated Logan and McGill were ver-optimistic. Chairman Ashurst (D) Arizona and Senator Neely (D) West Virginia, staunch supporters of the President's plan, announced they opposed any compromises.

Joining with eight outspoken foes of the plan who are on the committee, they would command a majority to defeat all compromises.

This forecast, made by Senators Logan(D.), Kentucky, and McGill (D.) Kansas, came as the committee closed its secret deliberation in preparation for a final vote on the President's bill and all compromises tomorrow.

COMBINE THREE PLANS

Logan and McGill predicted the compromise would consist of a round-up of three different substitues hitherto proposed in the Senate. Logan said the substitute would consist either of a limit of nine or 11 justices for the Supreme Court, retirement at 75, appointment temporarily of new justices if justices over 75 faily to retire, but limiting such appointments to begin in 1939 and to one a year thereafter.

This would be a combination of the compromises offered previously by Senators Hatch (D.), New Mexico, McGill (D.), Kansas, and McCarran (D.), Nevada.

SEEK OMPROMISE

Logan said administration senators were supporting the compromise, since they were resigned to the judiciary committee defeating the President's plan.

"I favor this compromise over the President's plan," said Logan, "because we can't get the President's proposition reported favorably in the committee. This is a compromise."

Later, McGill confirmed Logan's forecast. The Kansas senator said:

"I believe the judiciary committee will report favorably a measure that will be agreed upon tomorrow. It will be in the nature of a compromise."

London Bus Strike May Tie All Traffic

London, May 17 (AP)—Fear of an almost complete tie-up of London's passenger transport system were increased today by demands of a mass meeting of street car workers that they be allowed to strike in sympathy with 25,500 busmen.

Scientist Views War of Future

No Death Ray Yet, Says Marconi

(Marquis Guglielmo Marconi, world-famous scientist, herewith debunks recent "death ray" experiments, and in the following exclusive authorized interview describes the role science will play in the war of the future.)

By LISA SERGIO

World copyright, 1937, by Universal Service. All rights reserved. Reproduction in whole or part strictly prohibited.

Rome, May 17—Guglielmo Marconi's nimble brain beat me to the draw. Before I could speak, the world-famous Italian scientist quietly said:

Marquis Marconi

"You have come to learn whether it is true that I have invented a mysterious death-dealing ray capable of destroying vast armies by merely pressing a button? And whether it is true that I have perfected a ray whose energy can halt an airplane in flight or stop an automobile or war tank?"

I waited for his answer, newspaper headlines of the past year streaming through my head—sensational headlines telling about Marconi's mysterious experiments. He said:

"Bunk! All of those stories you have heard or read are false. I have not invented a mysterious death ray. I have not invented a ray capable of stopping the function of internal combustion (gasoline driven) engines. I havent' stopped any airplanes, motor cars or armored tanks."

Marconi thus exploded like a bombshell the carefully built up foreign propaganda which led many nations to believe he had produced for Premier Mussolini two new devices of destruction. Then he continued:

"The nearest we ever got with the death ray in the laboratory was when we killed a rat with the intricate device at a distance of three feet.

Aid of Science

"I am not at liberty to disclose how it was done, but if you have to crawl up to within three feet of something to kill it with elaborate, costly and ungainly apparatus requiring all manner of sensitive adjustment, what's the use? It's cheaper to shoot it!"

War, when and if it comes, Marconi made it clear, will not be—thanks to science—as horrible a holocaust as impractical pacifists, who use their propaganda to block national movements of creation of strong defensive forces, paint it, Marconi declared:

"For every offensive weapon science has created an adequate defensive weapon. Practical and elementary examples of what I mean are the gas mask and the anti-aircraft gun.

"The least I can say is that science can, and has, reduced the horror of war. And science can create further means of defense just as it creates, ever anew, means of attack."

Radio propaganda, Marconi indicated, will be among the most important weapons of any eventual war.

"Radio could be used to keep up the morale of the embattled nation," Marconi said.

"In the event of war," I asked "how can reception of undesirable or misleading broadcasts be prevented?"

Marconi replied:

"There is no really effective way of preventing enemy broadcasts from being heard in the defending country. Jamming interference is one but not very efficient way."

Talks on Television

Asked whether television would play an important role in any eventual war, Marconi said:

"The military possibilities of television are obvious."

Marconi revealed for the first time that he is presently engaged in intensive research with ultra-short and micro radio waves which will have a vital bearing on the future of practical television.

"My experiments on the behavior of short and micro waves will undoubtdly affect, very materially, the study of television," Marconi said.

Pressed for his opinion as to whether or not television would become a practical household utility like the radio in the very near future, Marconi said:

"It is difficult to say. All that can definitely be stated now is that television will sooner or later be in every house, just like the ordinary radio set is today.

"In my opinion, however, television is less important than speech broadcasting in the same way as seeing is less important than communicating one's thoughts in detail. Speech in addition to the ability to communicate thoughts by these means is a greater prerogative of the human race."

Baby Born After Mother's Death Fights for Life

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 17 (AP)—Tiny Francis D. Sordi, born a month prematurely and weighing only three pounds, 15 ounces, kept a wavering hold on life in a hospital incubator here today while plans went forward for her mother's funeral.

One Dead in Mexican Clash

Mexico City, May 17 (AP)—A new outbreak between rival labor organizations left one person dead and several injured in the town of Vicente Guerrero in Vera Cruz State today.

Girl Hurt After Hospital Visit to Mother

Lillian Di Petro of Chestnut street, Everett, hurried to Whidden Memorial Hospital, Everett, to visit her mother. A short while after she left her mother's hospital room, Lillian was a patient in Boston City Hospital, being injured as she rode in automobile of a friend. This auto collided with another car on Tremont street, South End. She was photographed at City Hospital.

Train Halted in Time Near Burning Bridge

With 240 passengers aboard, a speeding New York to Boston train was halted just short of a burning trestle at East Saybrook, Ct., today.

An emergency message by a section hand, who observed the burning bridge and notified the depot officials, saved the train from crashing into the chasm.

The 240 passengers who left for Boston at 8:30 were transferred to motor busses for New London to connect with another train. Schedules of more than 50 other passenger trains were thrown off and will be disrupted for several days, railroad officials said.

Eastbound train service was detoured through New Haven and Hartford, while westbound traffic to New York was being routed through Providence and Willimantic, New Haven officials stated.

Whipped by a strong breeze, the flames completely destroyed the piling foundation, buckling the double tracks over the trestle. Officials said that damages were so serious that no trains could operate over the trestle for at least three days.

SOVIETS FORM WAR COUNCILS

Moscow, May 17 (AP)—A system of all-powerful military councils to dominate all phases of Soviet military affairs and empowered to fight "the enemies of the people—spies and wreckers"—was established today in a decree issued by the Kremlin.

Reorganization of the vast red war machine was foreshadowed last week by the demotion of Marshal M. N. Tukhachevsky, first vice-commissar of war, whose name had been mentioned at the Jaunary trial of 16 "Trotskyists" accused of anti-Soviet plotting.

War councils, or Soviets, each including one army commander and two other officials, will be placed in command of each military unit.

MINIMUM WAGE STUDIED IN R. I.

Providence, R. I., May 17 (AP)—About 12½ per cent of women employes, included in a State Department of Labor survey of the wearing apparel industry in Rhode Island, are paid less than 20 cents an hour and 37.8 per cent receive less than 30 cents, Director of Labor Thomas F. McMahon said today in appointing a board to recommend a minimum wage for such employes.

Thomas F. Cooney, Providence lawyer and former member of the National Recovery Administration labor compliance board here, is chairman of the minimum wage board which will meet tonight in McMahon's office at the State House.

Director McMahon said that he "feels very strongly that there should be some point below which wages cannot drop, in order not only to protect the health and welfare of employes, but also to save employers who are paying fair wage rates from unfair competition, and to prevent taxpayers from having to subsidize fly-by-night employers."

The board appointed must make its report to McMahon within 60 days, and will survey the garment industries, garment accessories, pocketbooks, hats, curtains, rugs and mattress manufactories.

Murphy Ousted But Reports Daily

The conduct of an "ousted" commissioner of agriculture, who refused to be ousted, presented a puzzling problem today to officials at the State House.

Though removed from office by Governor Charles F. Hurley more than a month ago, Howard H. Murphy, one-time Hyannis grocer, reports daily to the office of the commissioner of agriculture and from time to time gives orders to employes of the department.

Murphy, who was succeeded by William Casey of Spencer, contended his removal was illegal and has carried his fight to retain the office to the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts.

Murphy's removal was on grounds of incompetence and neglect of duty.

Wife's Impatience Saves Husband

Harry Larkin, 43, was bleeding profusely from a deep razor cut in his throat, according to police.

He was taken to Central Hospital where doctors said his condition was not considered critical.

Seek Slain Girl's Companions at Her Funeral

On the lookout for two or her male companions, police today mingled with mourners at the funeral of Monica Foley, 22-year-old Roxbury blonde, slain last Friday in a Squantum cottage.

The funeral was held from her mother's home, Dudley street, Roxbury, and services were held in St. Paul's Church, Hartford street, Dorchester.

Two plainclothesmen attended the church services while a cruising car of officers stood parked within 200 yards of the burial services at New Calvary Cemetery, Mattapan.

The services in the church were brief and only 10 persons, members of the immediate family, attended. A curious crowd of pedestrians and schoolchildren lined the sidewalks when the coffin was brought down from the mother's house.

Police watched for the two men on the basis of the story told by Loy S. Kyster, 61, of Squantum, in which cottage the girl was found slain. Kyster is charged with murder and is being held without bail for continuance to May 25.

He told police he fired shots at two male companions of the Foley girl as they fled from outside his cottage the morning the girl was shot by a blast from his shotgun.

Attorney Joseph R. Zottoli, son of Municipal Court Judge Joseph T. Zottoli, was retained as counsel for Eyster by members of his family. The Boston attorney, who has a summer cottage in Squantum, has been friendly with Eyster for many years.

While the police investigation centered in the division of the Warren avenue station, it was learned that the grand jury is expected to visit the scene of the murder.

State detectives are working with Quincy police in an effort to learn the identity of the taxi driver who is supposed to have taken the Foley girl and two men companions from the South End to the Squantum cottage.

Austen Lake Finds Music in Hills of Kerry

Taxes Keep Prices High Throughout Ireland

(This is the fourteenth article in the brilliant series, "Ireland Today," being sent from Erin by Austen Lake, famed Boston Evening American staff writer.)

By AUSTEN LAKE

Boston Evening American Staff Writer

The Windy Gap is a rocky channel, carved through the crest of the Derrynasagga mountains, which separate the vales of Glengariff and Killarney. There the road turns from its winding ascent and starts down in hairpin loops and trickling curves, an eye-aching reach of stark ridges with cataracts zig-zagging down to the lakes below.

Among the dark crags the wine-red heather was beginning to blossom, the gorse was sprawling and a covey of grouse were feeding impudently within stone throw.

In this unlikely spot I met a manufacturer of burial-caskets from Chicago who had come upward from below and had paused to console his wife, tearfully determined to scale no more frightening heights. She wanted to turn back to the flats of Killarney while he was eager to go on through chasms and rock-tumbled country. So, I tried to persuade the casket-maker's helpmate that here was a theory which she owed to her later age and that their shiny, custom-made coupe could sigh over the route which my own palsied motor had just hiccoughed.

But she said be damned to later memories. It was the feel of level ground she craved under her feet. So back they went, the casket-maker screwing a cigar at a battle angle into his teeth and the lady dabbing her lashes with an embroidered kerchief. I felt sorry for both.

Land o' Music

Beyond Killarney, which needs no addition to its printed record, there were miles of plains and fertile farm lands that ran, a checkered carpet of greens and browns over a gentle swell of hills—the Kingdom of Kerry at its prosperous best.

A Kerry man in Cork named Francis O'Gorman had said:

"Ah, there's music in the Kerry country."

And there is—an orchestral tumult of brasses and percussions in the high hills, and the calm strings and woodwinds of the fertile levels, a geological symphony of Wagnerian contrasts.

A little man in a "caubeen," or bowler hat, with a battered trumpet under his arm, was walking near a crossroads, and I slowed down to inquire the route to Tralee.

"Sure," said he, "an' it's there I'm bound this very day me'self."

So he hopped in among the back seat baggage and paid his fare with a stream of now humorous, now wistful and philosophic chatter. Had he ever been to the Dingle peninsula?

"Have I now, just," said he with a dramatic intake. "Until you've seen Dingle, you've not seen Ireland. The paypul are the most gracious in the land, and the first thing they do is put on the black pot. I'm a Dingle man meself."

The town of Tralee was not what I expected, being a busy clearing spot for the farm produce, fisheries, building materials and bacon curing industries of the region. I fear that my conception was built romantically on the "pale moon shining above the green mountain," where the Rose of Tralee stray'd by a "pure crystal fountain."

Naught Cheap

There was no fountain in Castle street, which was a clean, narrow and bustling thoroughfare of shops and commercial hotels, where the service is quiet and courteous and the food good, if not cheap. Very little is cheap in Ireland under the tariffs and taxation which carries the load of infant industry and subsidized agriculture.

So I bade farewell to my musical passenger, who began blurting his penny-catching melodies on the very curb where I left him, and went off to hunt Patrick Cahill, the editor of the Kerry Daily Champion.

And while the old-fashioned roller-presses rumbled, I sat with him in his severely bare editorial office and listened to a lyric analysis of the Dingle people which went, as closely as I can recall, like this:

"Starved as the stoney soil is," said Patrick Cahill, "so the people are, and they live very anxiously by fishing or on farms—mostly little farms which were won by the bitter labor of generations out of mountain side."

His was the Kerry accent, which I cannot imitate, a broad inflection with curious dipping lapses at the end of sentences, a drooping caress as though the tongue was tasting its words.

"When a hundred deep-buried boulders have been wrenched and uprooted with iron bars," continued Patrick Cahill, "a man's field is made, and his sons, growing up, may have the strength, God helping, to add another acre of piled shale and rock before he is old. And the farm keeps as many as it can feed and the rest go off to England, or in the old days America, where they stay, breaking the very hearts in them for a breath of Kerry air and a bit of the old life at home."

Scenic Beauty

It was, to my mind, an excellent concentration within a few sentences of the economic history of a people.

So I went West again, into the heart of the Irish-speaking Gaeltacht along the Sleive Mish mountains which form a spine with the roads sometimes dwindling to a sheep track, where the rarely seen motor cars cause the farm folk to rise from their chores and stare, while the grazing black-face sheep race for higher crags. There were peeps of the sea on either side, harbors and headlands under clouds that were dappled and feathery, and far below, slopes that held more fortunate arable acres.

The population of the Dingle peninsula, sadly, is gradually "leaking" away toward the East. The Land Commission in Dublin has moved some families from the least "economic holdings" to the more arable country of Meath, and the failing fishing industry along the pocket of the coast has driven others away. Here, as everywhere along the Irish coast, English, Welsh and Scotch trawlers, with heavy, expensive gear come to drag Irish waters and carry away salted loads to foreign markets, which were formerly Irish markets. The little ketches of the Gaeltacht are no match for the seaworthy trawlers and their huge steam-winches.

I had hoped to go on past Dingle Town to Slea Head and embark for the Blasket Islands, but a wall of fog had blown in from the Atlantic and the waters were growing steadily whiter so that the outside fleets were running into Dingle Harbor and battening down for a blow. I gave up the idea rather than run the risk of being marooned on the high plateau of the islands for several days, and possibly a week, while the storm blew itself out.

There is a Mediterranean cast in the features of many of the Dingle peninsula people, a lean look and sallow complexion that suggest a mixture of Spanish blood. A tall youth was standing near a pier head with a jet black tangle of hair and the hawkish, aquiline features of a pure-bred Castilian, seeming to need only a pair of earrings and sideburns to complete the illusion. But he spoke only Irish, and on inquiry answered to the name of Padraig O'Criomhthain. People of this type, said the young civil guard who spelled the name for me, are usually silent, shy, and hard to know.

The weaving of linen and tweeds by the cottagers around Dingle has gradually dwindled away, so that the sound of the shuttle is seldom heard any more. But there was a cottage near Stradbally where a woman was working on a small hand-loom fashioning a mist-gray fabric which the seamen wear beneath their outside clothes. When on shore a fisherman will strip off his outer trousers and walk about in this pajama-like garment which resembles a course grade of summer suiting and is exceedingly soft.

Weaving Gone

The government is attempting to encourage the cottagers to resume their weaving, undertaking to market their cloth under the trade title of "Round Tower" fabrics and paying the full sale price. But the villagers are neglecting the art and the acres that once grew quantities of flax are given more and more to grazing or lapsing back to the bog. The youth of the country does not want to spin.

There are oyster beds along the upper side of the Dingle coast, where men rake up the sweetish and rough-shelled food for shipment in casks to London and Paris, oysters that will wind up at Ciros or on the Grande Boulevards with a waiter in claw-hammered coat serving them with a flourish. Oysters from the bottom of a hundred inlets and basins round Tralee Bay and north toward Kerry Head.

I returned in the dusk to the town of Tralee, where the people habitually overflow the sidewalks and walk with the traffic, bareheaded, fine-featured youth and shawled women, who made the streets hum with an affable babble. And they were still walking late that evening, coming from a Feis, or step-dance, or the cinema, or just strolling—some of them singing, so that in the middle of the night there were still the faint sound of refrains, swelling and dying, under my hotel windows, songs I have never heard before, songs belonging to the Kingdom of Kerry.

Austen Lake's next article in his gripping "Ireland Today" series will appear in Wednesday's Boston Evening American.

King Zog Crushes Albanian Revolt

Tirana, Albania, May 17 (AP)—A revolution said to have unveiling of women as one of its causes was a "complete failure" in southern Albania, King Zog's official news agency asserted today.

Documents found on rebels "clearly proved," the agency charged, however, that the uprising was "Communist inspired."

Merrill Outlines Safe Ocean Hops

By DICK MERRILL

(World Copyright, 1937, by Universal Service. All rights reserved. Reproduction in whole or part prohibited.)

New York, May 17—Experiences encountered and observations made during my four flights across the Atlantic have given me a clear picture of what regular airplane passenger service across the ocean will be like.

In the first place that service won't be operated with ships like mine, though that Lockheed proved marvelously efficient for the kind of flying I was doing.

To carry a pay load of passengers and freight there will have to be bigger ships with four engines, any two of which can maintain the full load. That gives you a safety margin which justifies carrying passengers.

These ocean passenger ships should have a top speed of about 200 miles per hour and a cruising speed of 175. Our cruising speed was only 150. It is necessary to have plenty of reserve speed for use in emergencies, such as skirting particularly bad atmospheric areas. Then there's the human element to be considered.

This commercial Atlantic airline we're talking about should have a crew of four or five men. There should be a first pilot, a co-pilot, a navigator and an engineer. It may also be found advisable to have a radio officer, although that work might be done by any of the others.

And every member of the crew should know every job on board, so that every man can be relieved for rest.

In other words, they should be just like my co-pilot, Jack Lambie, who did just as much of the flying across the Atlantic as I did and who deserves just as much credit.

These requirements may seem pretty high, but there is no difficulty in meeting them. If the crews of those ships of the near future are drawn from the Airline Pilots' Association, which is composed of the pilots of regular commercial air lines, they will be the best crews in the world.

Those men are accustomed to flying in all sorts of weather, flying blind by instrument, and they know everything there is to know about planes and flying.

The instruments already developed are, like the modern planes, amply perfected for regular transatlantic flying.

There are two things which should be improved as rapidly as possible.

One is radio. There should be stronger land stations to enable planes to keep in direct touch all the time for information and guidance.

And there should be much better weather information.

This can only be achieved by co-operation of all the steamer companies. Every boat on the ocean should take upper air observations with balloons twice a day and report their findings by wireless to a central office.

Then we'd have a complete map of the ocean at all times and a large part of the guesswork and chance would be eliminated.

Incidentally, this pretty well does away with the belief some people have that airplanes will eventually do away with ocean surface ships. That is ridiculous. The newer service must depend on the older and the two must co-operate.

There is, of course, still a lot of work to be done in the study of conditions in the sub-stratosphere.

That information will have to be gained by experimental flights, which in due course will be made. They will be made by the pioneers even though they are certain to be scoffed at as "stunts," just as my flights have been.

With a desire to play what small part we could to reduce the hazard of ocean flying of the future, Jack Lambie and I took detailed observations all the way on our flight.

We turned our informtaion over to Dr. James Kimball, the government meteorologist here who has been such a friend and helper to all ocean fliers.

SAY DIVORCE FORBIDS KING O.K. WEDDING

gagement this week.

"It will be the royal family's first public recognition of the duke's association with Mrs. Warfield," the referee declared.

The likely form for the announcement to take, the paper said, would be:

"The king learns with pleasure of the betrothal of his brother to . . ."

Even the Sunday Referee, however, did not fill out the style with which Mrs. Warfield would be designated, a question vexing court circles almost as much as the romance which brought about Edward's abdication and paved the way for George's coronation last Wednesday.

The king alone, court circles agreed, must determine whether or not Mrs. Warfield will become merely Duchess of Windsor or will take precedence as "Her Royal Highness, the Duchess of Windsor."

BALDWIN OPPOSED

Edward, feeling such a style was due his bride, was reported to have insisted that his younger brother make it clear she would take her husband's rank and be "H. R. H."

Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, backed by the church and some court circles, was generally considered to be leading the opposition to conferring royal status on the woman for whose love Edward stepped down off the empire's throne.

In the meantime, Mrs. Warfield's assumption of that name for the ceremony with Windsor was made completely legal through publication of the deed poll, by which she dropped her divorced husband's name of Simpson.

As required by law, the formal document, which costs $2.50 in Supreme Court, was circulated for the information of the public in morning newspapers.

PUBLISHES NAME CHANGE

The notice, buried in the advertising columns among attorney's announcements, read:

"Notice is hereby given that by deed poll, dated the seventh day of May, 1937, I, Wallis Warfield, formerly of 5 Bryanston court, county of London, now residing at the Chateau de Cante, Monts, province of Indre et Loire, France, formerly Bessie Wallis Simpson, have renounced and abandoned my christian name of Bessie and also have renounced and abandoned my surname of Simpson, and in lieu of such surname assume the surname of Warfield.

"Dated this fourteenth day of May, 1937.

"Wallis Warfield (Signed)."

Announcement of the wedding date and list of wedding guests was expected tomorrow afternoon at the Chateau de Cande where the couple are guests.

The statement, a spokesman there said, would clear up, as well, the controversy between the royal family and the government over the question of whether the wedding be public or private and the future status of Mrs. Warfield.

The approach of the wedding day swept Windsor back into prominence with the British public for the first time since he joined Mrs. Warfield at the chateau after her divorce decree was made absolute.

It was not, however, the dispute of the rank of the bride-to-be which caused the former monarch to share the headlines with the latest coronation news.

Morning newspapers printed eager speculation about who woud be invited to the ceremony and just how much recognition it would receive from the royal family.

"Some newspapers," the Express said, "foolishly supposed an official announcement of this event would be made by King George and published in the Lon-

"Of course this cannot be as long as the ecclesiastical objections hold good to the Duke's marriage with a woman who has been twice through the divorce courts and who has two former husbands living."

KENT TO BE BEST MAN

The Sunday Referee said the royal family's recognition of the forthcoming marriage, through announcement in the London Gazette, probably on Thursday, was extended at Windsor's request. The London Gazette is the government's official organ.

The Referee said the royal family would be represented by the Duke of Kent, youngest brother of the former and present kings, as best man, and the princess royal, their sister Mary, Countess of Harewood.

Winston Churchill, former cabinet member, and David Lloyd George, former prime minister, also would attend, the Sunday Referee said.

The Express declared the events of the abdication had had an influence on the British political structure which would remain forever. The paper added:

"An elder son has been set aside in the succession by his own act and a second member of the family has, with advantage to all concerned, taken his place.

"The hereditary system is to that extent changed. Why not apply similar 'structural alterations' to the House of Lords?

"There is a case of appointing to that place men of service and distinction. What arguments are left for installing their sons?"

Duke's Royal Kin Absent at Bridal?

London, May 17 (INS)—All reports to the contrary notwithstanding, no member of the British royal family will attend the wedding of the Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Warfield early in June, the usually well-informed Londoner's Diary of the Evening Standard declared today. In an article apparently inspired by the most authoritative sources, the writer said:

"I must again contradict the story that the Duke of Kent and other members of the royal family will attend the Duke of Windsor's wedding.

"The facts are that since the marriage will be necessarily a civil one, the Duke has decided it is to be of private character.

PARIS AIR DERBY BANNED BY U. S.

(Copyright, 1937, by International News Service)

Washington, May 17 (INS)—The United States today called an abrupt halt to the proposed New York-to-Paris air race, scheduled to touch off the Paris International Exposition this summer.

Permits will be refused pilots seeking to fly in the hazardous transatlantic Air Derby, Colonel J. M. Johnson, assistant secretary of commerce, stated in an exclusive interview.

Charting a new air policy, Johnson declared the ban will extend to all future "stunt" flights.

"There isn't going to be any New York-to-Paris air race," Johnson asserted. "No permits will be granted any flier for such a flight. Furthermore, this government isn't going to permit any more stunt flights of any nature to be held."

The ultimatum calls a halt to what was planned as the most dramatic air race in history.

It grounds 22 ships of six nations entered in the race planned to commemorate the 10th anniversary of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's historic New York-to-Paris dash in his ship, the "Spirit of St. Louis."

The race was scheduled for August with a $50,000 prize for the winner. Entrants included nine Italian government planes, four French, three American, three British, and one each from Rumania and Sweden.

Success of the flight of Dick Merrill and Jack Lambie last week from New York to London and return will have no effect on the Department of Commerce decision, Johnson indicated.

Merrill and Lambie expected to enter the New York-to-Paris race also.

Paris, May 17 (INS)—France will hold her Lindbergh commemoration air race to Paris from another country "if Washington does not back down" and reverse its decision to ban the dash, a member of the government said today.

"Maybe we'll negotiate with Canada," the minister added, unofficially.

Paris Air Derby Banned by Canada

Ottawa, Ont., May 17 (INS)—Canadian Air Ministry officials intimated today they would ban any proposed air race from Canada to Paris.

WARN 150,000 FORD WORKERS OF UNIONS

Dearborn, Mich., May 17 (INS)—Attaches of Henry Ford today started distribution of the "Fordisms" cards atacking unions to Ford's 150,000 workers while the CIO's United Automobile Workers Union prepared to open two offices here.

Harry Bennett, personnel director of the Ford Company, said distribution of the cards through which workers were warned they would place their necks in iron collars if they joined unions, began when the shift reported for work today at the River Rouge plant here.

The River Rouge plants employ about 90,000 of the Ford army of workers. An additional 60,000 are employed in plants scattered throughout the country.

Walter Reuter, president of the West Side Detroit UAW local, into which Ford workers will be taken, said he had warned unionists and Dearborn police said no trouble was anticipated.

Thousands of Ford workers are loyal to the world's No. 1 independent motor manufacturer and bitterly anti-union, according to Bennett. The latter said he had warned them and members of his service department not to resort to violence.

"We will attack nobody," said Bennett. "But if they attack us, we will defend ourselves."

Bennett said that he had not read of the attack on his department made by Homer Martin, U. A. W. president, in which Martin accused Bennett of operating the "most vicious labor spy system in the world," in the River Rouge plant.

"I never read anything Martin says," asserted Bennett. "It isn't worth reading."

Hollywood, May 17 (AP)—Unionized film players, granted better pay and closed shop, were pledged today not to strike during the next 10 years, but a 17-day walkout of craftsmen still harrassed Hollywood studios.

The strike front of the federated motion picture crafts was broken, however, when members of two of its 10 unions returned to work. These, the machinists and culinary workers, agreed to begin formal negotiations with producers in 10 days.

St. Louis, May 17 (AP)—Normal operations were resumed in St. Louis hotels today, following settlement of a one-day strike under terms providing for recognition of unions, a "closed shop" and negotiations for regulation of hours, improved working conditions and an increase in wages.

Termination of the walkout, which affected 2000 workers in eight downtown hotels, averted its spread to 20 other hotels.

Connery Explains Two Labor Bills

Denial that the two sweeping labor bills confronting Congress means a new National Recovery Administration was made today in an interview by Congressman William P. Connery, Jr., of Lynn.

While addressing an Italian-American dinner last night in Lawrence, Connery said the House labor committee, of which he is chairman, will approve "with presidential approval" two minimum hour bills.

One of the bills, he said, would provide for an $1 minimum wage and a 35-hour week for the nation's textile industry while the other would provide for a minimum wage, maximum hours and no child labor for all industries throughout the country.

"Is this a new National Recovery Act?" the congressman was asked today at his Lynn home on Bellevue road.

"No," came the answer quickly. "It will not have codes like the National Recovery Act. One will be a simple bill stipulating minimum wages and maximum hours and outlawing child labor.

"It will have all the strong points of the National Recovery Act but none of its weaknesses."

"How does a bill affect other industries besides textilers?"

"It affects all other industries just as 1 taffects textiles but there might be some difference in hours and wages which would be determined by the industries themselves."

"Have definite minimum wages and maximum hours been set in the bill?"

"Not positively. That also will depend on some of the industries and the circumstances."

"What is meant by industries termed in the bill?"

"Does this bill affect only manufacturers?"

"It affects all industries."

"Will the bill pass Congress?"

"Yes. I have every reason to expect it will pass with very little opposition."

The congressman said he could not state "positively" whether a board will be set up to determine the legality of certain issues if they should arise. He added that "a message is expected from the President shortly defining his policies regarding a board."

He stated that the bill would apply only to industry engaged in interstate commerce since "we cannot interfere with state rights."

Connery said the textile bill would probably be reported within two weeks and the second bill would be reported later in the session.

3 CLINTON RIOT WARRANTS

Warrants against three strikers at Clinton were obtained today as the highlight of labor troubles in various sections of New England.

The three will be arraigned in Clinton court tomorrow on charges of disturbing the peace during picketing of the Colonial Press last Friday.

No warrants have been sought as the result of street fighting Sunday morning at the same place.

The cases of four strikers and one non-striker scheduled to be heard this morning were continued to Saturday.

About 50 strikers picketed the plant this morning but there was no disturbance.

In Maine, officials of the CIO were celebrating today one of the most important developments in the history of labor activities in that state.

Employes of three key factories in the shoe industry in Lewiston and Auburn voted over the weekend to accept the CIO as the bargaining agency.

Workers at the Highland, Prospect and Murphy plants cast 712 ballots of which 540 were favorable to the CIO, 172 against and 27 challenged ballots were thrown out by mutual consent.

The election was supervised by Thomas Williams, Federal labor conciliator, and Dr. A. Howard Myers of the national labor relations board.

'Ned' Iselin, Bride Keep Honeymoon Destination a Mystery

By BETTY ALDEN

IF THE WEDDING GUESTS took Ada Dewson at her word, she was "all dressed up with no place to go" as she and her new husband, "Ned" Iselin, hurried away from their wedding reception yesterday afternoon . . .

MRS. EDWARD G. ISELIN

Though it was obvious that they were headed for some honeymoon spot, they insisted on keeping the destination a mystery which even the most clever usher could not solve . . . and the best the energetic young men, who wished to play the usual honeymoon tricks, could do, was to follow the couple a few miles while Ada and Ned waved back and shouted "We'll see you the 7th of June" . . .

Whether she was headed North, South, East or West, Ada was appropriately dressed in a beige fox coat with a fluffy lynx collar, over a brown dress printed with beige flowers . . . For contrast she tucked a red purse under her arm and wore a small red turban . . . while the rest of her accessories were brown . . .

Before changing into her going away suit Ada had very charmingly gone through the usual procedure of a large wedding . . . She marched down the aisle with her father, back again on the arm of her bridegroom, and then greeted hundreds of friends at the reception at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George B. Dewson, of Milton.

Yards of liberty satin trailed about her as she glided down the aisle . . . her gown was made with a bodice and long sleeves of lace given to her by her mother-in-law, Mrs. John H. Iselin, and which formerly belonged to the bridegroom's maternal grandmother . . . Another choice piece of heirloom lace, belonging to the bride's mother, fashioned the little cap which held her veil in place . . . A bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley completed the bridal outfit . . .

Mrs. Parkman Dexter Harding, the bride's sister, was matron of honor . . . her gown was of pearl grey chiffon with a short cape and an emerald green sash which formed a train in the back . . . She wore a small, open crowned turban of green and grey twisted chiffon with a short grey veil, and carried an arm bouquet of talisman roses . . .

The bridesmaids were the Misses Elisabeth L. Hamilton, Elizabeth M. Johnson, Sarah G. Bradlee, all of Milton, and Miss Harriet Hawkins of New York and Portland, Oregon . . . They wore similar gowns of grey chiffon with American Beauty sashes and trains, twisted rolls of the two colors with grey veils, for hats, and arm bouquets of American Beauty roses . . . They all wore slippers to match their sashes . . .

Receives at Her Home

RECEIVING at her home following the wedding, Mrs. Dewson was a bright figure in thistle pink chiffon with a short matching cape and a large black straw hat trimmed with thistle flowers . . . Her bouquet was of sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley . . . Mrs. Iselin's gown of navy chiffon and lace had a matching navy hat, and she wore a corsage of gardenias . . .

Among the out of town relatives and friends here for the wedding were Mrs. John H. Iselin, Jr., sister-in-law of the bridegroom, with her two children . . . Mrs. William B. Fearing of Mt. Kisco, N. Y., an aunt of the bridegroom . . . Mr. and Mrs. Colin MacDonald with their niece, Helen MacDonald, of New Jersey . . . Miss Helen Goodridge, a cousin of the bridegroom, and Miss Mary Dewson of New York . . .

Dr. John J. Iselin, Jr., was best man for his brother, and the ushers were Philipse Iselin, William I. Fearing, Crosby Tuttle-Smith, Victor E. de Mers, Gardner L. Booth, all of New York, and Parkman D. Harding of Milton, brother-in-law of the bride . . .

The bride is a graduate of Milton Academy and was presented to society in the season of 1925-26 . . .

Her bridegroom, whose full name is Edward Goodridge Iselin, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Iselin of Riverdale on Hudson, N. Y. He belongs to the Ex-Members Association of Squadron A. of New York . . . and, like his bride, he has some very distinguished ancestors on his family tree . . . After June 7, the newlyweds will be at home at 4 Hutchinson street, Milton . . .

Travel Catalogues Intrigue

Don't be surprised to see Faith Barney with steamship folders and travel catalogues tucked under her arm . . . for Faith is going abroad the first of July, and although she plans to spend most of her time in Geneva, she finds the pictures of out of the way places very tempting and likes to pore over them like the rest of us . . . Faith is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. Dellinger Barney of Marlborough street who have a summer home in Dublin, N. H. . . .

* * *

Also headed Eastward is Mrs. Horace Morison of Louisburg square, who plans to be off in about two weeks for a vacation in Europe . . . While she is gone the Morison girls will open up the family homestead in Peterboro and make ready for a busy summer season . . .

* * *

The new debutantes will have their first taste of that "happy hectic whirl" . . . a phrase frequently used to describe their existence . . . the first two weeks of June, when nearly every day on the calendar is marked with not one, but often three and four parties for one of their number . . .

For instance, on June 5th, the day's program includes a luncheon at The Country Club which Mr. and Mrs. Edward Osgood of Cambridge are giving for Nancy Osgood . . . a tea dance followed by a buffet supper and dancing for Priscilla Hall at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Francis C. Hall in Chestnut Hill . . . and a small dinner dance for Ellen Hartt, at which Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Hartt of Chestnut Hill will be hosts . . . and that's a sample day . . .

Dr. and Mrs. Richard H. Thompson of Boston sailed from New York Saturday for a vacation in Bermuda.

This photo of Mrs. Alfred Kidder, 2d, and John M. Graham, taken at the Pops the other evening, is one of the last pictures of Mrs. Kidder which will appear in the Boston papers for some time. She and Mr. Kidder left over the week-end for South America where they will be engaged all summer in an expedition of historical research in Peru and Bolivia. Mr. Graham was president of Hasty Pudding Club's theatricals this year.

B. C. Alumnae Hold 'Cruise' Meeting

Boston College alumnae went to lands "down under" at its meeting yesterday. Via movies and impromptu talks the graduate group visited New Zealand, the Fiji Islands and Australia. Helen Cummings was the cruise master and sound efects, even music for the South Sea islanders, were supplied by Carolyn Noonan.

The affair marked the close of the first season for the enterprising group which numbers all girls who have received degrees from Boston College.

DR. KERRIGAN IN CHARGE

Dr. Alice Kerrigan, president of the alumnae, was in charge assisted by a pair of the alumnae's officers, Gertrude Godwin, whose printed frock was topped by a large rough straw hat, and Margaret Lynch of Cambridge, who later presided at one of the flower-bedecked tea tables. Miss Lynch, whose wedding in June to Dr. Charles Brusch will be a fashionable affair, was smartly attired in black and twin silver foxes.

Busying herself throughout the tea hour was Dorothy Denning of Brookline who scribbled reservations for the alumnae banquet slated for June 2 at the Heights. She cut a jaunty figure in her black nubby wool costume trimmed with marten.

Mary Murphy of Roslindale, another active alumnae, also assisted at tea . . . her navy crepe sporting gay, printed sleeves. Miss Margaret Salloway also chose blue . . . bright velvet bands trimming her tiny bumper straw.

CHORAL GROUP PLANS

Plans for a new choral group and arrangements for the Catholic Congress on May 25 and 26 sounded the keynote of the day's business. Elizabeth O'Doherty who entertained with solos, was appointed chairman of the new glee club. She'll be assisted by Camille Palumbo who's cutting a swath in theatrical and musical circles.

Mrs. George Coyne, who did such an excellent job planning the alumnae three lectures held throughout the winter, will be the group's official delegate to the Catholic Congress. At yesterday's affair she was chic in a coronation blue ensemble, luxuriously trimmed with light gray fox.

Barbara O'Neill wore a dashing coat of large brown and white check . . . a bright feather shooting up from her brown felt beret and Elizabeth Ford and Helen Callahan, a couple of capable tea assistants, chose the favorite navy blue.

Also glimpsed a corps of Junior Philomatheians at the meeting . . . Virginia Grimes, Dorothy Crannell, Anne and Mary C. McCarthy and Frances O'Halloran, whose coat of navy wool was exceptionally smart with her large navy blue felt.

Los Angeles, May 17—When Wera Engels took the boat back to Europe without ever having reached the coast, she carried an American contract in her pocket.

She will make two pictures for Mary Pickford just as soon as she completes her Vienna commitments, and the story, which comes to us from an excellent source, is that Miss Pickford will herself finance and produce these Engels pictures for United Artists release.

Louella O. Parsons

I am also reliably informed that one reason the Engels - Pickford deal was kept so quiet is because Germany makes no secret of the fact that it wants its favorite movie star on an exclusive contract and Austria is equally eager to keep the amazingly successful Wera in Vienna. Ivan Lebedeff, who traveled east to spend a few weeks with Miss Engels, returns here heartbroken, we are told, because she didn't have time to so much as visit Hollywood.

England, France, Italy and points across the sea are loudly paging Harold Lloyd—and so is our own U. S. A. They want him to stop loafing and give us a picture. So Harold, who every 18 months or so gets the urge to face the cameras, will step into line June 15 and begin work on "Professor Beware" a typical Lloyd yarn about a professor of archaeology in a co-ed school. This one is by Francis and Marion Cockrell with comedy situations plus. At the moment beauteous Marsha Hunt is being tested for Harold's leading lady.

Welcome, with a capital W, is on the mat for Ramon Novarro who returns to his picture-making activities with a new Republic contract. Ramon makes three this coming year and the first is "She Didn't Want a Sheik" in which he will sing and play the type of role that made Rudolph Valentino famous and established Novarro himself as a favorite. Many of our readers will be glad to hear this news of Ramon for seldom a day passes without three or four letters inquiring as to his whereabouts and expressing a hope that "we will be seeing him in the movies."

Chatter in Hollywood: Looks as if Gypsy Rose Lee hasn't made up her mind whether to be a "regular" or la belle grand star in Hollywood. After consenting to be Bruz Fletcher's guest at the Bali where they were planning to snap pictures of Alice Faye, Alice Brady, Gypsy and others who had attended Bruz's "high" party in their amusing costumes for a national magazine, Gypsy nearly blew up when she discovered the two Alices were not present. At first she refused to pose with the rest of the gang if the two other stars were not present. When she heard that both were planning to pose at home, Gypsy regally protested: "But suppose they change their minds—then you'll have my picture and no other stars!"

A Line or Two: If present plans go through to make Mae West's next a musical, there is a grand role for Al Jolson, right up his street, and both Mae and Emanuel Cohen want nobody else to have it. Mae and Al together should certainly spell "Mammy" at the box office . . . It was a lucky break for a young man named Douglas McPhail when Jeanette MacDonald spotted his voice above all others in the ensemble on the "Firefly" set. Because of Jeanette's interest, he gets the lead in six two-reel operettas Jack Chertok will produce.

JOAN BENNETT must be younger than we thought—she's down with chicken pox along with her two daughters; BRUCE CABOT claiming some kind of a record—he caught 14 black widow spiders on location; JAY KAUFMAN, one-time columnist and well known writer who has been ill for five months with toxic poisoning, well again and making the rounds; MRS. DORA JOYCE night clubbing with the very good looking CHARLIE MORRISON; BOB TAYLOR paying $30 in postage for a huge package which turned out to be a life-sized painting of himself by a Washington artist; PINKY TOMLIN dancing the evening away at a night spot with BARBARA PEPPER; ROGER PRYOR arriving for a brief three-day visit with his bride, ANN SOTHERN. He's set to rejoin his band in Cincinnati; MRS. JACK OAKIE planning a return to the movies; JULIE HAYDON and PHIL HUSTON booked for a summer engagement with the Capetown Stock Company.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

'Hello, Paris' At Howard

Nona Martin

"Hello, Paris" is a flashy show, studded with laughs, sensational dancing, unusual specialties and loveliness galore. Miss Nona Martin, dancer, is one of the featured performers. Others are Alma Mabin, specialty dancer; Josie Carrol, also a dancer; Harry Lender, dialect-comic; Joey Shaw, dancing juvenile; Honey and Toby, international dancers; Eddie Aiken, character actor, and a chorus of 25 pretty singing steppers.

On the screen is "Gentleman from Louisiana," with Eddie Quillan and Charlotte Henry, and "Four Days' Wonder," with Martha Sleeper and Alan Mowbray. There is also a comedy and newsreel.

OPENING FRIDAY NIGHT

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE—"The Galician Rabbi," operetta with music by the famous Joseph Rumshinsky, starirng Menasha Skulnik, Yiddish comedy star who has been described as "the perfect fool of the Jewish stage." There will be afternoon and evening performances on Saturday also. Company has just ended a successful season's run in New York.

Garden Wedding

Miss Elisabeth Kitchel, daughter of Mr. Cornelius Porter Kitchel, of Englewood, New Jersey, became the bride of Alexander Lincoln, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Lincoln of Brookline, this afternoon. The Rev. Carl Elmore, rector of the First Presbyterian Church of Englewood performed the outdoor ceremony in the garden of the Kitchel's Englewood home.

The bride wore her mother's wedding gown of white satin, made with a Venetian lace yoke and sleeves, a long tulle veil caught to a wreath of orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of white roses, sweet peas and lilies of the valley. Miss Helen M. Carroll of Baltimore, Md., was the maid of honor and only bridal attendant. Attendance at the ceremony was limited to relatives and intimate friends of both families, a reception followed.

William Lincoln of Brookline was his brother's best man and the ushers were Thomas Whiteside of Medfield and David Crockett of Boston. On returning from their wedding trip Mr. Lincoln and his bride plan to live in or near Boston.

Miss Kitchell, who is the daughter of the late Edith Rose Kitchel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Ray of Brooklyn, N. Y., graduated from the Masters School at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., and from Vassar College with the class of 1933. She also studied at the Graduate School of Radcliffe College and is a member of the Junior League of Englewood.

Mr. Lincoln prepared for college at Milton Academy and graduated from Harvard with the class of 1932. He is a member of the Hasty Pudding-Institute of 1770 and the Iroquois Club.

'Captains Courageous' Premiere

Tonight, at the Colonial theater, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's stirring production, "Captains Courageous," made from Rudyard Kipling's famous story of Gloucester fishermen, will have its New England premiere.

Chiefly concerned with life on a Gloucester fishing schooner off the Grand Banks, the picture reeks with salt spray and is, according to the New York critics, one of the great pictures of the year.

Gloucester, in acknowledgment of this cinema tribute to its heroes, is sending a delegation to the Hub for tonight's premiere. Headed by Mayor Weston U. Friend, the men of Gloucester will sail up aboard the We're Here, the ship used in the picture; and in the group will be Secretary Arthur L. Millett of the Gloucester Master Mariners' Association, who as a cub reporter interviewed Kipling when the famous novelist was down on Cape Ann gathering material for his best American story.

Freddie Bartholomew, Spencer Tracy, Lionel Barrymore, Melvyn Douglas, Charley Grapewin and Mickey Rooney head the "Captains Courageous" cast.

Freddie, cast as the millionaire's son, falls off a European-bound liner, is picked up by a Portuguese fisherman, played by Spencer Tracy, and is put to work on the fishing-schooner. The spoiled boy, under the influence of the simple, gallant fisherman, becomes a lad his father, Melvyn Douglas, is proud of.

Tremont Screen

On the Tremont screen are "Three Men on a Horse," made from the biggest stage hit in recent years, and "The Big House," melodrama with a prison background.

Tax Returns

Washington, May 16 (US)—Nearly a half million more persons filed federal income tax returns last year on 1935 income than the previous year. However, only about 55 per cent of those who filled out the returns paid any taxes, the report showed.

BOSTON after DARK

(A columnist's Stooge, who's been out of town, peeks into the spot of the Master—at Holland Hall in St. Elizabeth's—and finds out that it's O. K. to go ahead and ask questions, and pick his own answers.)

GEORGE HOLLAND

Speaking of Operations:

When they pulled that silver spike out of your heel, Geo., did you ask the name of the heel? . . . Or did it matter? . . . They're still all around town . . . And just to change the subject—who is Rusty? . . . The girl who carries an ache away for somebody else? . . . And lives with it until it hurts her, too . . . She's a nurse whose business some day will overcome her . . . You didn't know, but I hadn't been in there more than five minutes when I learned that she'd cried . . . And for you, sissy . . . Just because it hurt . . . Right after that, the Round Man Reporter came in and asked if you were up . . . "Yes," she gave out, "on the second floor" . . . That's the only man in the world who ever had a chance to swim in nurses' tears and didn't take it . . .

Remember that last week you said the only people you ever could love were Paula (Your Ma) Dot, Geo. M. Cohan, Sam Harris, the Kids, the Ritz Brothers, Peggy Doyle, Jack Malloy, the Landlord, Fred Allen, Benny Drohan and all the rest of the people you'd forgotten—and do you remember when we'd asked you if there was anybody you'd left out, you cracked "Yes, Dick Merrill and his co-pilot?" . . . And remember that right after that you went to sleep and you wouldn't be disturbed? . . . Although we were all in the room . . . This Stooge thinks the people you left out weren't the people who'd hold it against you if they were . . . Or has it been a tough Sunday? . . . I know it has been for the peeker . . .

Once Upon a Midnight:

After we'd left you, we went down to the Famous Door and found that Rocky was away . . . We did find, however, that Ed George was there and so was June Murphy of Som'l . . . The beautiful one that makes you hold your breath . . . You remember—the sun-tan in Nantasket? . . . Anyway, Geo. says, Geo., that it may be June in January . . . Maybe he got confused . . . If the invitations are out Tom Maren will have one . . . And you know Tommy . . .

Ed Don Geo., by the way, hits Capetown, S. Africa, Sept. 17th in a show that has Ben Lyon and Bebe Daniels—and little Barbara—showing in probably the most famous troupe to hit the spot . . . It's an after-carnival bit that follows the coronation . . . The wrestler just made it back here for last Fri's meet in the Garden . . . Ben and Bebe have been overseas since come this July . . . Your correspondent has been lax in answering the cables from across . . . We did sit on the Lyon-Bebe doorstep on U. S. Route 101 for several hours, hoping for them to come back . . . And today is months later . . .

In the wrestling mood, if they'll let him, Henry Piers, the big Dutchman, will work back this way and take all comers . . . Did you know, Geo., that this man is the only one they've never let meet Dan O'Mahony? . . . If some right mgr. would take hold it wouldn't be surprising if they'd both go places . . . Piers is recovering from boils—in Canada—suffered from wrestlers not from that place . . .

Once Over Lightly:

When something explodes in the U. S. marshal's office on June 1, don't tell the wife we didn't tell you . . . Marshal Murphy hasn't made the contacts . . . No matter what they say, Chief Justice Arthur P. Rugg of the S. P. won't retire . . . Three others may . . . Two of the justices have been porch-sitting, but not in court . . .

Benny Poole, who's been so sick at Chelsea Naval Hosp., sez he'll duck the joint, if he has to, in order to make the N. Y. American Legion Convention in Sept. . . . He says, Geo., that he'll wear the new October sun-tan . . . A month ahead, hey? . . . Danny McDevitt of W. Rox., the automan who's out for school committee (he's the son of Deputy Super James, who never did anybody wrong) reminds that we spelled his name wrong too . . . That wasn't our fault . . . If I wanted to name the printer he'd come up here and laugh with all of us . . . He told us that noontime, at lunch . . .

I should have told you, Geo., that Happy Gagne, the Famous Door hossteeth-kicker, did it for 17 numbers straight—just before we go to press—on 17 varied numbers, and he timed the tunes so that everybody could dance in the same tempo . . . It was marvelous . . . You know—"Mutiny On the Bounty" set to music . . . Was he mad, but he was still the trouper . . . A stewy made the dare . . . And the piano player took it . . . Not less disturbed was Evie Spenseer, the ciggie gal . . .

Tue. afternoon at the Kenmore will see the first of several functions by the ladies of the Crosscup-Pishon Post, American Legion . . . Mrs. Gov. Hurley and Mrs. Gen. Cole—they'll be first ladies pretty soon altogether—will pour with Mrs. Carroll Swan, widow of the late past-commander . . . What's the name of the party, Geo., that wrote "Love Begins Where You Left Off?" . . . Sounds like something Winchell wrote to Bernie and Bernie sent it back without postage because he didn't know your address . . . This thing gets more confusing every minute . . . And so till tomorrow . . .

Vina Delmar Film Waited

"Make Way for Tomorrow," screen play of the great American family in action, by Vina Delmar, which is to have its Hub premiere at the Paramount and Fenway Theaters a week from Thursday, has been called a modern morality play.

Beulah Bondi and Victor Moore play the grandparents in the film, which has been adapted from a story by Josephine Lawrence. Thomas Mitchell, Elizabeth Risdon, Minna Gombel and Ray Mayer are cast as the scrappy middle-aged children. Fay Bainter and Porter Hall play the roles of a pair of in-laws with notions of their own as to what's to be done with aged in-laws, and Barbara Read, a granddaughter, whose conception of a good time brings her into conflict with the generations represented by her parents and grandparents.

CHAPTER TEN

The taxi finally drove away, and Edward was gathering up the bags. He hadn't seen her yet, but the girl looked up. She had a small, pointed face, with a broad forehead, and wide, frightened eyes. She jerked Eddie's coat with her free hand and said something. Then he looked up and saw her, too.

"Hello, Mom," he said.

"Hello, son."

The girl kept right at his heels. Now, who in the world could she be? What kind of a girl goes visiting at a young man's house at half past nine in the morning?

The frown on Mrs. Wilson's face had deepened into a scowl, though she was entirely unconscious of it.

"Mom," Eddie said, kissing her, as she set the bags down in the hall, "this is Marie. You see, I brought her back with me."

The girl, who barely came up to Eddie's shoulder, lifted her face as if she, too, expected to be kissed. Mrs. Wilson backed up hurriedly. "Pleased to meet you," she said coldly.

The girl shrank back against Edward.

"Well, here we are!" Eddie said brightly. He led the way into the living room, and Mrs. Wilson motioned the girl to follow. She herself brought up in the rear.

Eddie drew the girl onto the chesterfield beside him, so Mrs. Wilson lowered herself into Pop's chair, and waited for Eddie to say that he had brought the girl to breakfast.

He was always bringing people to breakfast, though he knew very well she didn't like it. Well, he'd have to speak up and ask for it. She wouldn't mention it until he did.

"What a lot of rain we're having," she said conversationally.

"Oh, are you?"

"My goodness," Mrs. Wilson smiled in spite of herself, "where have you been? It's been coming down in torrents for four days! This is the first clear morning we've had!"

"It hasn't rained in Los Angeles," the girl said. She had taken off one glove, and was twisting it into knots.

"I brought Marie back from L. A.," Eddie said.

He didn't look very well. And no wonder, after driving all night. She stole another look at the girl. A girl that drives up from Los Angeles with three boys!

"Was it a pleasant trip? Did you have a nice time, son?"

"Oh, wonderful! Just wonderful! In fact it was so wonderful that I—that Marie and I—"

"Well, I'm sure you must be tired. And Miss — Miss — also. Would you like to wash?" Mrs. Wilson broke in, beginning to catch the prevailing nervousness.

"No, thank you," the girl said. She looked appealingly at Eddie. She was probably waiting for him to drive her home, and it was just like him to sit at his ease and take his time.

"Because if you want to get on home, and I suppose you're as tired as Eddie is, why he may as well drive you now, and then rest later. The car's in the garage. Eddie and you can get two gallons of gas, that ought to be enough, unless you have far to go. You don't live out of Oakland, do you, Miss— Miss—?"

The girl was really very pale. Mrs. Wilson's heart softened towards her. Quite likely she was Press' girl, and Eddie was just taking her home for him.

"No, Eddie," she said briskly, "you run around and get the car, and I'll take care of Miss—er—. what did you say the name was?"

"Alexander," the girl said automatically.

"Yes, Miss Alexander, I'm going to fix you up a dose of soda. I know when I ride a long way I always get a bilious headache myself, and there's nothing like baking soda to—"

"Mom," Eddie said.

She stopped. There was something in Eddie's face. Something had happened.

"Mon, keep quiet a minute, please, and let me explain. My gosh, Mom, don't you see? I brought Marie back with me. Marie Therese Alexander—you remember? The girl I—I knew in Hollywood. She—Mom—we're married!"

"Married!"

The concern faded from Mrs. Wilson's face, and for a moment the company smile came back

"You—I don't quite understand—" she began. He'd married this girl. Her Edward . . .

"Oh, Mon, say you're glad! Think of how Marie feels!"

"I hope you don't mind very much, Mrs. Wilsoh. We—it—was all very sudden."

"Sudden," Mrs. Wilson said. "Sudden." She sat down heavily..

Eddie went to her and put both arms around her. He chucked her under the chin. He was up to his old tricks.

"Now, Mom, show Marie what a swell sport you are. Tell her you're glad!"

Glad! Mrs. Wilson looked at this strange girl who had married her youngest child. Her Eddie whom she nursed through double pneumonia and chickenpox and whooping cough and measles. Her baby. The one that people said she'd never raise, because he had jaundice right after he was born.

She'd always loved Eddie best, though nobody would ever guess it, because she wouldn't let herself be unfair. But she'd always favored Eddie, just as Claude had always favored Bee. She couldn't help it. And now he—

Eddie was talking again. He was rattling off some nonsense about falling in love, and not being able to leave the girl, and wanting to bring her home to his own wonderful mother.

Poor boy, he was terribly upset. It was plain who had engineered all this.

The girl wiped her eyes. As if SHE had anything to cry about. She, who had just married Eddie.

"Mom, be a good sport. Pull yourself together. We're counting on you to be on our side and break the news to Pop and Bee. Now, Mom, please! Take Marie upstairs and show her where you want her to put her things and—"

"To put her THINGS!"

"Well, Mom! Don't you want us to stay awhile? You're not going to throw us out, are you?"

Bitter Hate

He was trying to make her laugh. He wanted her to act pleasant and dignified, in front of the girl.

He always wanted her to be at her best when he brought his friends home.

Well, she'd tell the girl to take off her things, and then she'd go out in the kitchen and fix them some coffee.

Only—only the girl wasn't visiting. She'd married Eddie. She would stay, if he stayed.

A spasm of pain contorted her face. She opened her mouth to say, "Won't you come upstairs?" but she had no words. She began to sob, loudly, uncontrollably.

Eddie took his mother's arm awkwardly. He tried to turn her face toward him, but she kept it hidden in her elbow.

"Now, Mom, I was counting on you."

He tried again. "Mom, if you act like this, what will the rest do to us? I thought I could depend on you to be on my side!"

Mrs. Wilson jerked her arm away from her son's hand, gave a loud, rasping sigh.

"I did think you would get us some coffee and toast or something, but if you don't feel like it, I'll go and do it."

"You'll do no such thing," she said quickly. "You just sit down and entertain Miss—Miss Alexander—"

"Marie, Mom!"

"Entertain HER and I'll do it. And—" she managed a watery smile, "then maybe we'll all feel better."

"Now, you see," Edward told Marie when his mother had wiped her eyes and pushed back her hair with the backs of her hands, and gone into the kitchen. "She'll be all right. Don't you worry, darling."

"She doesn't like me."

"She does, too!"

"She HATES me!"

"Now, Honey, you're being silly!"

"I can't help it. I can't stay, Edward. I just couldn't stand it. I'd die—I'd go crazy—"

He sighed. He glanced from his drooping bride, still primly grasping purse and gloves, to the end of the hall through which his mother had disappeared kitchenwards. Women, he thought, women!

He wanted to tell Marie that if her mother hadn't driven her out she wouldn't be here, and if she hadn't insisted on telling her mother that wouldn't have happened.

Anyway you looked at it, it was entirely her fault, and here she was, blaming it on him!

"On the Train!"

But as he looked down on her wide, white brow, her clear, flower-like pallor, her wide, light eyes begging him for help, he could only love and forgive her.

"Never mind," he said smoothingly, "never mind. Everything will be all right. Leave it to me."

Presently, sitting in the warm breakfast nook, drinking coffee, refusing warmed-over biscuits, and then changing her mind and eating three lots of butter and home-made grape jelly, she almost thought that it woud.

"This is the first REAL coffee we've had," Eddie said flatteringly. "You can't count what we had on the train."

"On the train? But you—you DROVE!"

"I drove down, Mom, with two fellows in that little roadster. The three of us packed in like mackerel in a can. We couldn't put Marie in, there wasn't room. So she and I came back on the train."

Mrs. Wilson tried to grasp the full significance of this. "Did you have the money?" she asked in a low voice.

"Oh, Marie's stepfather, a retired business man, put up for that. He wanted to. He made Marie quite a nice cash wedding present, too.'

"Well!" Mrs. Wilson said. Her face brightened a little. Not that she approved, but if the girl had money and could really help Eddie.

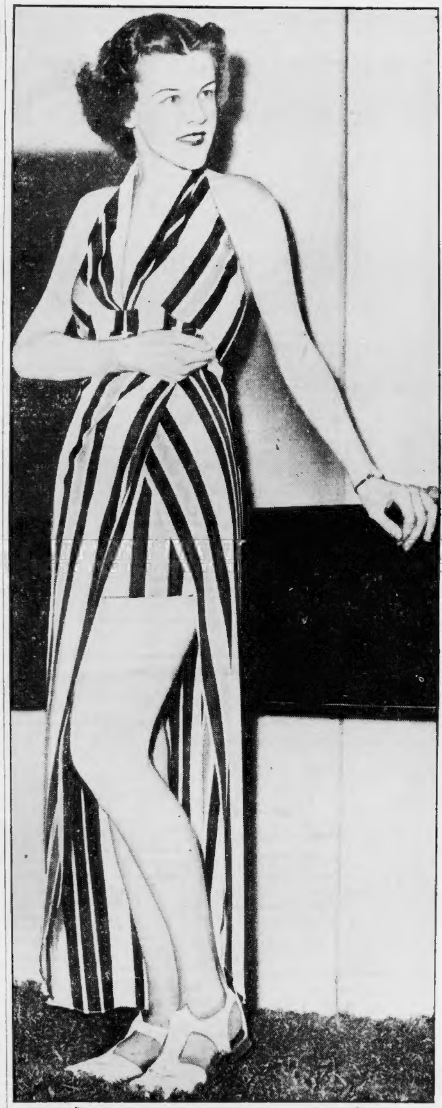
Fashion Flashes

GIRLS are excited these days over innovations in coiffures. The new styles are high, wide and handsome, a restful change from the slapped down finger wave that looks as if it were painted on the skull.

There are many new hair ornaments, too, such as a six-strand "bracelet," to be worn on the feminine pate. There also are half a dozen tiny braids with curly ends.

Off the Awnings



COOL as shadows cast inside by awnings onto dark, polished floors . . . and as brazenly blatant as the awnings themselves are on the outside . . . that's the fashion trick played by one of the most striking beach ensembles to receive the tag of the Fashion Congress! Miss Polly Keppler, Newton post-deb, models. Awning stripes captured the cabana-ites of Florida, burgeoned on Bermuda beaches, and now they're about to become the belles of beach clubs both north and south of Boston. There's not only a certain drama about them, the snaky things actually do marvelous things to figure lines. This set, in mint-cool acetate has a sarong that may be tied or swathed around the shoulders. Suit and cape may be bought separately. Back to baby days are the flat-heeled white sandals. For shopping information, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, week-days until five, or write her at the Boston Evening American.

KATHERINE GIVES NO SIGN OF WORRIES

CHAPTER 304

THERE was an inflection in my husband's voice as he asked me if I would "answer a question honestly" which I only hear when he is deeply moved.

"You know I will, dearest, if I can. What is it?"

"I'm ashamed to tell you," Dicky mumbled with his lips against my hair. "But with all this talk flying around on Katherine's part, I couldn't help wondering—"

I did not dare to laugh, but he was certainly risible rousing in his confusion — expected in a schoolboy but slightly ludicrous in a man of the world. But I answered him quickly, decidedly and truthfully.

"There isn't the sign of a yearning anywhere in my system," I said briskly. Then, with quick transition to tenderness, I pulled his head down to mine.

THE ONLY MAN

"You're the only man in the world for me, and I love you with all my heart," I whispered tensely, and with a hoarse little exclamation, Dicky kissed me roughly, almost fiercely, and then, an instant later, with infinite tenderness.

"My own girl!" he whispered, and then, htrough the open window of the camp, we heard Katherine's footsteps crossing the floor. With a quick, final embrace, Dicky released me, and we went into the cabin, to meet Katherine, who was just closing the door of the smaller bedroom which held our baby daughter, Faith.

"I suppose I couldn't have one peep at her," Dicky said.

Katherine hesitated only the fraction of an instant.

"Why not?" she said, and turned again toward the door of the improvised nursery. But she had hesitated, and realizing that the request, while seemingly trivial, held in it the possibility of waking the baby and disturbing the careful routine by which she lives, I touched Dicky's arm warningly, then pressed my fingers more deeply against his flesh when the first warning went unheeded.

BUNKS ARE READY

"Eh? Oh! yes, yes," Dicky stammered. "Never mind, Katrina. On second thought, it would be a shame to risk waking her, and possibly keep the rest of us awake for awhile. I'll see her in the morning."

Katherine turned imperturbably from the door, but I knew that there was distinct relief in her soul.

"It's up to you," she said. "One thing is certain. You'll all be up bright and early tomorrow morning. Junior, with the prospect of that trip to the mountain peaks before him, will be one of the busiest little alarm clocks going."

GOOD MANNERS

OFFICE ENGAGEMENT

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I work in a large office employing about 500. Because of changes in work and transfer of employes, some of us, though friendly, do not meet very often.

1—In the event of an engagement, what do you suggest we should say? The young man is to be congratulated, but what should be said to the young lady?

2—Should we ask to see her ring, or should we wait for her to offer to show it to us? A.

1—Yes, we congratulate the young man. And to his fiancee we offer "best wishes for your happiness." (We do not "congratulate" the young lady).

2—If the young lady is wearing her ring, it is proper, and thoroughly natural, to speak of it and to admire it. If she isn't wearing an engagement ring, it might just be possible that she isn't to have one, for any number of reasons, and then it would be rude to mention a ring.

GIFT TO TEACHER

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My piano teacher is giving a recital and I am to take part. Would i bie proper to give her a gift at this time, and if so, who should present it to her . . . my mother or I? What would you suggest as a gift? J.

The perfect gift at this time would be for you and your mother t send a corsage for your piano teacher to wear at the recital.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers.)

"Your Figure, Madame!"

By IDA JEAN KAIN

(Copyright, 1937, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

SUMMER is the time of short sleeves and the revelation of arms as they actually are! Between summers arms stay pretty much out of sight, and it's amazing how out of shape they can get in a few months of indoor inactivity.

Even housework doesn't seem to do very much in the way of beautifying the arms, since the electrical wizards have almost eliminated the necessity for that primitive ingredient called "elbow grease."

Nowadays, even the tasks that cannot be performed by pressing a button, very seldom involve raising the arms to shoulder height.

Dishwashing, sweeping, running the electric cleaner, cooking—they all use the muscles on the front of the arm, but not those on the upper back of the arm where muscular activity is needed to maintain firm round contours.

Now, don't misunderstand—we are not in favor of harder housework. Far from it. But something must be done about giving these out-of-the-way triceps muscles enough to exercise, so that the arms shall not become disfigured with ugly hanging flesh. Skinny arms need special exercise just as much as arms that are too fat.

To put the important muscles to work, the arms must be held at shoulder level. Here is an exercise you will like doing, because it gives double returns—it also beautifies the back.

Position: Stand about three feet from a wall, palms braced against wall with hands turned so that fingers meet.

Movement: Holding the body as straight as possible, bring the trunk forward to touch the head to the backs of the hands. Return to upright position and repeat three times without interrupting the rhythm. There's more than one way of getting the arms to shoulder-level, and this exercise is very effective. Hold the abdominal wall up and keep the tummy flat while doing the exercise. The entire body should be stretched up tall.

It will pay you to invest in a light pair of dumbbells. You can buy these at any department or sports shop, and the cost is very low. Their use will aid in normalizing the bust contour at the same time the arms are firmed.

And now, one last bit of advice about arm beauty . . . elbows sometimes emerge from the heavy woolen and silk sleeves of our winter garments looking as though they'd been walked on! If the skin is rough, use a pumice stone, very gently, to remove the hard cuticle, bleach with lemon, and use plenty of oil or cream. Do not use the pumice more than once a week, and then be careful that you do not scrape too hard.

Bridge:

A Defensive Play

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Close co-operation between defenders is often not enough to defeat a contract; sometimes they need a bad guess by declarer in addition.

North:
♠ A Q
♡ Q 9 7 8
♢ K J 6
♣ A K Q J

West:
♡ A K J 4
♢ A 10 4 2
♣ 10 5

East:
♠ 6 5
♡ 8 5 2
♢ Q 7 5 3
♣ 9 8 4 2

South:
♠ K J 10 8 7 2
♡ 10 6
♢ 9 8
♣ 7 6 3

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 N T	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
3 N T	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

West opened the King of hearts, East signalling with the discouraging deuce. West promptly shifted to the fourth-best diamond, and South had to guess which card to play from dummy.

The lead had demonstrated that West had the Ace and King of hearts. To South that seemed to suggest that the Ace of diamonds was more likely to be in the East hand. In addition, East's discouraging deuce of hearts had indicated readiness to support some other lead.

South, therefore, gave East credit for the Ace of diamonds, and hopefully played dummy's Jack. Naturally, East won with the Queen, and returned a heart to West's Ace. The Ace of diamonds then defeated the contract.

The point to the defense was that each defender could see that no tricks could be won in the black suits and only two in hearts. Two diamond tricks, therefore, had to be won by the defense in order to defeat the contract.

Bath From the Sea

POSED BY JEAN HARLOW

By ARLINE GOULD

DO you remember as a child, how you used to gather sea-moss on the beach—how you loved its strange, salty tang?

[illegible] you are no longer a child and you don't spend [illegible] any longer on a white, windswept shore, you [illegible] of the things that are associated only with [illegible]

[illegible] a gift from the sea. It is more than mere bath [illegible] beauty treatment in one. It may seem [illegible] that it has the power to relax tensed muscles and taut nerves but that is exactly what it does.

The powder comes in little packages—one to a bath and you have a choice of bouvardia (a distinctly new fragrance), pine and many others.

If you would like to know the name of this bath which is really a gift from the sea, call Arline Gould, Liberty 4000, or write to her at the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self addressed envelope.

Shun Self-Made Martyrs Who Put Blame on Their Wives

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Some old wiseacre once said that the happiest women, like the happiest countries, are those that have had the least history.

So, Girl, considering Boy, [illegible] ask the same question about [illegible] history. Has he survived?

If he's still in the early twenties, but has been divorced and engaged to someone else, very probably he's not a safe risk.

I've actually been personally acquainted with a boy, married first at 18, and again at 20 and each time his mother was the petitioner in his divorce suit. The young man in the case was still a minor, an "infant" in the eyes of the law.

Beware of these "infants" whose "only books are woman's looks," as the poet Tom Moore said. Take this letter for instance.

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"We met as I was about to cross the bridge. He drove up in his car and asked to take me over. I hesitated, then got in. He asked me if he could drive me anywhere. I mentioned the house where I was going to a party, and he left me at the door.

"Two months ago I met the same boy at our lodge dance. He asked to be introduced, and we recognized each other as the boy and girl who had met at the bridge. After a number of meetings he told me he was engaged to another girl; that she was very sweet, but he intended to break with her and wanted to marry me.

"He told me about his past unhappy experience. He was [illegible] had been married for five years, had two children—a boy and a girl. His wife got a divorce and the custody of the children. He took it very hard as he was fond of his children. He claims his wife was in love with another man.

"Here is my problem. Although he broke with the girl to whom he was later engaged, he still goes to see her. He has asked me to marry him.

"He says he is between two fires and doesn't know which girl to take.

"He says he loves us both the same, and I know I care deeply for him. He comes to see me one night, and his former fiancee the next night. It doesn't seem fair, to either of us.

"Do you think it would be best for me to quit him till he finds out which of us he cares most about—his once fiancee [illegible]? I am 20. [illegible]"

DEAR CHILD:

Indeed I do think it would be well for you to quit him for a very much longer period than the time required for him to decide which of you two girls he wants to marry.

By that time, a boy of his temperament would probably have dropped both of you and added a couple more to his list.

When a boy of 2[illegible] tells you his wife divorced him and got the custody of the children, because she was in love with another man, don't be ashamed of being a bit hard-boiled.

Have your big brother look into that divorce case.

The law recognizes no such grounds as that, for giving a woman a divorce and the custody of the children.

If he told you a straight story, he might have been the injured party, while the fact that the children were given to his wife shows that something was chalked up against him.

He was engaged to another girl, chucked her when he met you, and now can't make up his mind which of you he wants.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

BEATRICE—Why not drop the young man a letter, tell him that you are going to be in his city and that you would like him to meet you? I admit that sounds a bit bold, but as you were much to blame for the misunderstanding that [illegible] your [illegible] do you good. After all one of you must make the first move. And to me it seems you are the one.

MARTHA—The young man is entirely too sure of you. You've literally worn your heart on your sleeve. As long as you have already told him you love him, go a little farther. Ask him frankly [illegible] or not he intends to marry [illegible]. If he answers [illegible] look around for better [illegible] [illegible] years [illegible] proper.

Martha Lee Gives New Recipes for Banana Dishes

By MARTHA LEE

Bananas are at their best and the price is low. That can mean but one thing to the homemaker. Now is the time to serve bananas in our menus.

Do you know how to buy bananas? The best way is to buy them by the hand or cluster.

[illegible] little money. Then, too, there isn't a bit of waste. [illegible]

Oh, yes, someone asked recently if it was necessary to scrape off the [illegible] that [illegible] cling to the pulp of bananas. It is not necessary to scrape the banana except for infant feeding.

BANANA AMBROSIA

2 bananas
1 cup grapes
1 orange
1 pineapple rings

BANANA AND CHOPPED PEANUT SANDWICHES

2½ medium bananas, peeled
½ cup chopped, salted peanuts
6 lettuce leaves
⅛ teaspoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt
12-16 slices bread
Butter

Crush bananas [illegible] with the salted peanuts, the lemon juice and salt. Spread slices of bread generously with butter. Use [illegible] tablespoons of mixture for each sandwich. Put sandwiches together with lettuce leaf.

BANANA GINGERBREAD

¼ cup butter
¼ cup sugar
1 egg, beaten
½ cup dark molasses
1½ cups flour, sifted
½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon salt

National Magazine Number One

5,979,576 Families

IN THE six months ended March 31st, 1937, The American Weekly again surpassed all previous records, attaining an average weekly circulation of 5,979,576 copies per issue.

This dominant circulation, established for the period by reports of the 17 distributing publications to the Audit Bureau of Circulations, far exceeds that of any other publication in the world and emphasizes the position of The American Weekly as National Magazine Number One.

An Impressive Audience

Even in a nation callous to big figures, this huge family audience is impressive . . . commanding the interest and respect of alert merchandisers in all branches of trade.

This great army of families . . . containing one-fourth of the people who read any English publication at all . . . are regular customers of one national magazine.

THE AMERICAN WEEKLY
Beauty and the Beast
Ancient Myths Interpreted by Edmund Dulac

This group of 5,979,576 buyers are regular customers of The American Weekly . . . just as hundreds of thousands are regular customers of Macy's or Gimbels in New York, The Emporium or Hale Brothers in San Francisco, Marshall Field in Chicago, or Maison Blanche in New Orleans.

5,979,576 Weekly Customers

And these customers return week after week because they prefer the merchandise or service rendered by store or publication. It is this principle which results in the large volume of business done by outstanding companies in every division of retail trade or consumer service, from restaurants to railroads.

A restaurant succeeds because people like the food it serves. A publication builds patronage when people prefer its editorial menu. On the record, the menu offered by the editor of The American Weekly is first among all publications.

The latest available A. B. C. reports, reflecting in number of patrons the preference of readers, list the circulation figures of the six major weekly publications in the national magazine field, as follows:

The American Weekly	5,979,576
Saturday Evening Post	2,963,430
Collier's	2,522,925
Liberty	2,372,449
Literary Digest	677,323
Time	631,238

([illegible])

Nearly $600,000 per Week

Each week these regular customers spent $597,957.60 for The American Weekly and the Hearst Sunday newspapers through which this magazine is distributed; $148,171.50 for the Saturday Evening Post, $126,146.25 for Collier's, $118,622.45 for Liberty, $94,687.70 for Time, and $67,732.30 for Literary Digest. These figures are based on single copy newsstand prices for all publications mentioned.

Here is convincing evidence of an irresistible editorial formula . . . equally appealing to social leaders and stenographers, bankers and bookkeepers. It is this fact that dictates use of The American Weekly by the nation's most successful advertisers.

Where this Magazine goes

The American Weekly is the largest magazine in the world. It is distributed through the 17 great Hearst Sunday newspapers. In 627 of America's 995 towns and cities of 10,000 population and over, The American Weekly concentrates 67% of its circulation.

In each of 174 cities, it reaches better than one out of every two families
In 144 more cities, 40 to 50% of the families
In an additional 134 cities, 30 to 40%
In another 175 cities, 20 to 30%

. . . and, in addition, more than 2,000,000 families in thousands of other communities, large and small, regularly buy and read The American Weekly.

QUELL NEW PRISON OUTBREAK

THIS IS LIFE

BY

Robert E. Rogers

The other day somebody important (I'm not sure who) tapped the cracked and famous old Liberty Bell in Philadelphia with a gavel brought by relays of Boy Scouts from Valley Forge. That meant that the all summer commemoration of the sesqui-centennial of the composition and signing and adoption of the Constitution is now under way. From time to time other important people will undoubtedly be sounding off on the subject and we shall be reading or listening to what they have to say. I can make several good guesses right now.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

I suppose it is because we are such a young country—after all, what is a hundred and fifty years—that we are so assiduous in keeping birthdays, centennials, or biennials or tercentenaries as the case may be. Maybe in another hundred years we shall get over the habit, as the English have got over celebrating King Alfred and the cakes, and 1066 and all that, Magna Carta, and the Armada.

Not Sure What Event
Was Celebrated

I don't quite know what specific event the Liberty Bell ceremonial commemorated. According to such information as I have the Constitutional Convention met for the first time on May 25, 1787. An abler body of men than has been seen since the first two Continental Congresses, headed of course, by George Washington. Rhode Island was not represented and as a matter of fact, did not even ratify the Constitution until 1790, by a majority of two votes.

The convention did not adjourn until September 1787. Before the end of the year Delaware, Pennsylvania and New York had ratified, and Georgia, Connecticut and Massachusetts followed in the first two months of 1788. Rhode Island refused to call a state convention and the several towns voted against it by an overwhelming majority. In Massachusetts, even, there was strong opposition to ratification.

I suppose we shall be hearing a great deal this summer about constitutionality and the general welfare clause and, above all, the Supreme Court and what the Congress intended [illegible]. The President obviously does not intend to allow the court to declare any of his pet Congress's pet bills unconstitutional. Maybe he will take steps about that, too.

Unconstitutional Means
Little in England

I was a little surprised to learn the other day that the word "unconstitutional" in England does not mean what it does over here. Here it means illegal, that the Supreme Court has definitely decided against a measure. Now in England of course, there is no document called the Constitution. There is only a series of precedents of previously passed laws. There is no power above Parliament. Consequently no law passed by Parliament is illegal. "Constitutional," therefore, so far as England is concerned means merely contrary to precedent, strange, odd, unaccustomed, but not illegal.

"In England freedom slowly broadens down from precedent to precedent." In the United States the Supreme Court as slowly narrows it down.

To me the really important question about the Constitution is whether the first ten amendments, the Bill of Rights, shall continue to be whittled down in spite of the Founders' obvious intentions, by the police power. The Bill of Rights—and this comes as a surprise to many people—was added to the Constitution for one specific purpose, to protect the citizen against his government, to curb (in the immortal words of Walt Whitman) the eternal insolence of elected officials.

Officials Trying To Chisel In

The elected officials are forever trying to chisel in on the Bill of Rights. The police are forever trying to limit and license and even forbid the liberties guaranteed by the first ten amendments, such as the right of free speech, peaceable assembly, and the free press. The last especially no less an official than the President would obviously like to whittle down. In prohibition the police were constantly violating the amendment about warrants and due process for search and seizure. Occasionally a constitutionally-minded judge would put a stop to it. Let the police have their own way and there wouldn't be a shred left of the Bill of Rights.

CHARGES Hubby Cruel TO PETS

DIVORCE WON BY SOCIALITE

Because her husband allegedly kicked the family pets around the house," Mrs. Marian L. Cross, Brookline socialite, obtained an uncontested divorce from her husband, Grosvenor N. Cross, Jr., a Harvard graduate, [illegible]

Her husband would hurl their pet monkey into different corners of the room, knowing that it upset her and caused her mental anxiety, Mrs. Cross testified.

They were married April 28, 1926, and have two children. Her husband left in December of last year, declaring that she and the children were "too much responsibility" for him, Mrs. Cross said.

GRANTED CUSTODY

She obtained custody of the children, Leigh, six, and Ann, two.

Testifying that for three years her husband was drunk every week end Mrs. Ellen J. Welch was granted a divorce from John P. Welch of Norwood. They were married April 5, 1926.

She was awarded custody of their three children and $20 a week support.

Mrs. Sarah B. Wheeler obtained a divorce from Dr. William D. Wheeler of Brookline, on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment.

ORDERED TO GET OUT

The doctor is 14 years older than she, Mrs. Wheeler said. After being married little more than a year, he told her to get out of his house because he was too old for her, she testified. She was given $25 a month alimony.

Two other decrees were awarded on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment to Mrs. Eva H. Lewis from Arthur L. Lewis of Medford, and to Mrs. Weinande A. Ross from J. Richard Ross of Quincy.

Sticker Drive On! Watch Your Brakes!

The sticker drive is on. Better get a safety sticker on your automobile quickly. The deadline is May 31. Miss Frances Lee was one of the first to get a sticker. You see her in the family auto as she received approval of Motor Vehicle Inspector John J. Flynn. If your car has faulty brakes you are liable to five days' registration suspension. Better check up on brakes and lights before you are halted.

CLAIMS CHIEF TELLS OF MUTUAL TROUBLES

Sometimes the Commonwealth Liability Insurance Company was defaulted in suits because of the unwillingness of its clients to report accidents.

Sometimes, after suits were filed against the company, it was difficult for the claims department to determine if the automobiles involved were even insured.

Once the broker who sold a client insurance with the concern couldn't produce the man in court when he was being sued.

Charles F. O'Connell of Framingham, claims manager of the Commonwealth from last May until November, today told the special legislative commission probing the now bankrupt concern that these were only a few of his difficulties.

QUIT BECAUSE OF COHEN

He told the commission that in one case where the assured had been only recently released from the Connecticut state prison when the company was forced to answer for the deaths of two persons.

O'Connell said that he resigned because of instructions from Frank Cohen, New York financial backer of the Commonwealth, to "settle first and investigate afterwards."

"The ink was hardly dry on some of the policies," he said, "when suits were filed."

O'Connell said that when he had taken his job the company records showed only 800 claims against it.

Within four months, or by August 31, 1936, he asserted, the new system of record showed that the claims totaled 3487.

"Seventy-five percent of the reported claims were first made known to me when I received letters from attorneys telling me about proposed suits," O'Connell testified.

TOLD OF DEFAULTS

"Nor was it at all unusual for me to have a lawyer call me up and tell me the Commonwealth had defaulted because of the unwillingness of the assured to report an accident."

The witness said that while the male employes in his department were three times as many as other companies with similar risks had and while the females were three or four times as many, he still had to borrow a secretary to check the registration of supposedly insured cars.

He denied that he had ever supplied Count Luigi Castelli, elected, but not actual president of the Commonwealth, with a list of those in the claims department, but said he might have "discussed" these employes with him.

He said he had no knowledge of Insurance Commissioner DeCelles having been the person to recommend a number of these employes for their jobs.

DeCelles, who has asked for another opportunity to testify at the hearing, will probably be heard about Thursday, the commission indicated.

ROXBURY PAIR FOUND GUILTY

Two Roxbury youths, trapped outside a Massachusetts avenue night club in the Back Bay last December, were found guilty in sealed verdicts returned by a Suffolk county jury.

They are John D. Griffin, 28, of Townsend street, and Francis O'Connor, 26, of Hillside street, both of Roxbury. A companion, George Varney, 19, of Norfolk street, Roxbury, pleaded guilty when arraigned with the others last Friday.

Griffin pleaded guilty to charges of armed robbery, but denied other charges in an indictment holding him for four breaks, carrying a weapon under his control, larceny of automobile, larceny of 11 sets of auto plates and of a medical kit, and with possession of burglar tools. He was found guilty on all counts.

O'Connor was found guilty of larceny of an automobile, or auto plates, the medical kit and of possession of burglar tools.

Loan Co. Lowers Interest Rates

Reductions in small loan charges went into effect today in the branch offices of Household Finance Corporation in seven principal cities of Massachusetts.

The lower rate is on the borrower's unpaid balance between $200 and $300 and is graduated from three per cent per month on the loan balance up to $100, two per cent per month on that part of the balance unpaid above $100 and up to $200 and drops to one per cent per month on balances above $200 to the legal maximum of $300.

Steve Flaherty 500 to Honor

More than 500 persons will attend a banquet tomorrow night at the Copley Plaza to honor Captain Stephen J. Flaherty, of the Detective Bureau.

Captain Flaherty for many years active in police work both here and in New York will be honored by police officers from all parts of the East. Sixteen members of the bombing squad of the New York police department have reported they will attend.

Captain Flaherty retires from active service on Wednesday.

Cashier Guilty, Gets 18 Months

Robert E. Hurley, 31, former cashier in the Federal street office of Baldwin & Co., investment brokers, was sentenced to 18 months in the House of Correction today after pleading guilty to 47 counts of larceny, totalling $12,494.40.

Sentence was imposed by Judge John F. Gibbs on an indictment brought in Suffolk Superior Court.

Hurley told police he had spent the money on "entertainment" and horse race bets. An audit of the company's books revealed the deficits in April.

Sticker Drive Starts Today

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Goodwin today assigned all available inspectors to stop vehicles lacking official State stickers.

While motorists have until May 31 to have their equipment inspected, Goodwin plans to rush the sticker drive by assigning inspectors to stop cars believed to be operated without proper brakes and lights.

Couple to Start On 15,000 Mile Bridal Sail

Gloucester, May 17—In a belated honeymoon, climaxing a whirlwind courtship and marriage a year ago after meeting aboard a freighter, Captain and Mrs. Bailey M. Sawyer will leave here Wednesday on a 15,000-mile voyage aboard their [illegible] Henrietta.

Captain Sawyer, a native of Cape Cod, and his wife, a native of Australia, leave here on an eight month's trip that will take them through the Straits of Magellan and thence across the Pacific to Australia. They plan to visit Mrs. Sawyer's folks at Melbourne.

The couple met a year ago on a freighter bound from Melbourne to New York. They were wed in Provincetown, but came here when they purchased an 89-foot schooner recently.

The Henrietta's first stop will be Norfolk, Va., where new staterooms will be installed. The next stop is New York for supplies, and then they sail for Australia.

Girl Recovering From Auto Hurts

Injured only a short time after visiting her mother at Whidden Memorial Hospital, Everett, 21-year-old Laman Di Pietro of Chestnut street, Everett, was recovering from a slight concussion at City Hospital today.

She was injured while riding in an automobile which police said was operated by Joseph Bruno of Hancock street, Quincy. The car collided last night with another machine at Northampton and Tremont streets, South End.

Hub Girl Sought As Will Heiress

The whereabouts of a [illegible] Gallagher of Boston was being sought today by Attorney J. Edward Clancy of Chicago.

The girl has been named as the beneficiary of an insurance policy of her brother, P. J. Gallagher, who died December 12, 1932.

Gallagher was 51 when he died and resided at 6814 Parnell avenue, Chicago. Gallagher was affiliated with a labor union.

UPROAR Over Fist FIGHT

PAIR PLACED IN SOLITARY

While 800 prisoners thronged the prison yard for Sunday privileges, a fresh outbreak occurred yesterday at State Prison in Charlestown, the Boston Evening American learned today.

Two prisoners serving long sentences were locked up in solitary confinement today for infractions of prison rules after they had broken into a fist fight in the prison yard.

Guards rushed into the milling crowds of prison inmates, pushing them back from the fighting felons and breaking up the two.

Prison guards kept an apprehensive watch throughout the night, fearing that the unsettled feeling hanging over the prison after the fight, might flare into another cell disturbance.

WITHHOLD NAMES

Prison authorities refused to reveal the names of the men involved in the fight but said it had ended abruptly before further trouble could break out.

The Boston Evening American learned, however, that the two now being held in solitary are Stanley Clayton, 33, of New Bedford, an escaped convict from Arizona state penitentiary, now serving a 15-to-25 year term for armed robbery, and William Troy, 35, of Boston, serving 15 to 25 years for robberies.

Clayton, originally from the Texas border town of Laredo, was taken into prison at North Attleboro in [illegible]. He had already served time in Rhode Island for attempting to rob St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Central Falls.

He was responsible for one previous outbreak at State Prison when he stabbed another convict with a pen knife in [illegible].

Troy was convicted in 1928, and sentenced for robberies in Somerville, Chelsea, Cambridge and Allston.

It was the third time within the past two months that serious outbreaks have occurred at the penal institution, aggravating a hysteria which seems to be sweeping the inmates.

The latest was on May 11 when a chorus of yammering, accompanied by catcalls and clatter of [illegible] racked the south wing of the prison for 30 minutes.

STATE IN PROBE

State authorities have launched an investigation of conditions at the prison, seeking possible means of transferring prisoners to other institutions.

Appeals have been made to raze the Charlestown prison, and begin construction of a new penal establishment for hardened criminals.

Storms of protests have gone up from citizens of Bourne on the Cape, and other proposed locations for such a new prison.

15 Vets of Allies Made U. S. Citizens

Veterans who served in military or naval forces of countries allied with the United States in the World War, eligible for naturalization under the act of June 24, 1936, have until May 25 to apply for citizenship papers.

This was announced today by Miss Mary Ward, Commissioner of Immigration. Fifteen veterans eligible under this act who had already made application for papers were admitted to citizenship by Judge Elisha H. Brewster in Federal Court today.

Ice Cream May Become 'Ice Milk'

A bill which would require ice cream which is made of "milk instead of cream" to be labeled as "ice milk" was passed today in the Massachusetts Senate. "Ice milk has been substituted for ice cream," Senator Edwin Olander (R), Northampton, declared in asking passage of the measure which would require that a package containing "ice milk" be conspicuously labelled.

Speed Aid to Ill Fisherman

Coast Guard headquarters reported today that the cutter Harriet Lane was speeding toward Nova Scotia to contact the Boston trawler Cambridge and remove a sick member of the crew.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

Ann Marsters

Hollywood, Calif., May 17—The one and only reason why Ginger Rogers will not be teamed with Fred Astaire any more, is that Ginger doesn't feel like being No. 2 personality in her pictures all through her career.

Now it's a question as to how she's going to feel about being teamed with Katharine Hepburn in "Stage Door" which is just beginning production.

ANN MARSTERS

Hepburn is used to having a lot to say about her pictures, and never hesitates to say it. Ginger doesn't usually cause anyone any trouble—but now she's decided to put her foot down and look out for her own interests. After she broke up with Astaire, she had hoped to star in a picture all by herself—but now she's got to compete with the Hepburn personality.

Anyway, a lot of people feel that both Ginger and Fred are making a big mistake in not continuing to dance along together.

Brilliant Future For Harvard Crew | Adept at Sprint Or 4-Mile Route

By JACK CONWAY

Mr Boston

I HOPE you will excuse me for calling attention to the fact I predicted that Tommy Bolles' inspired Harvard crew would defeat Cornell, Syracuse and Tech in their race on the Charles river.

I have become an ardent rooter for Harvard's great crew, and it has yet to let me down.

Crew racing at one time was one of the leading sports at Cambridge. When Harvard raced Yale 15 to 20 years ago, Boston sports followers would eagerly wait to get the late newspaper extras which had the account of the race.

Then the Harvard crew went social. Unless you came from the right families and were members of the select college societies you just didn't belong.

The fact a student was a great oarsman was not of much importance. He might make the trip to New London for the race with Yale, but he would view the event from one of the observation trains and would not be pulling at an oar in the Crimson shell.

Harvard then made a right about face in crew. It put crew on the same basis as other sports which called for ability and hard training.

CREW KEEPS IMPROVING

THE HARVARD crew keeps improving with each race. It looked good when it won from Princeton and Tech. It was more impressive as it defeated Columbia and Rutgers. It was brilliant as it won from Cornell, Syracuse and Tech.

Tommy Bolles has proved an excellent coach. He has the confidence of his men, and they work hard to gain results. Bolles contends that spirit and hard work win more crew races than anything else.

I look for the Harvard crew to keep improving. It may go on to set many new records.

It takes real courage, much perseverance and 100 per cent condition to make a top oarsman. Candidates for the crew work out during the winter on apparatus that is rigged up indoors. In the early spring, they get out on the Charles River. Then the real drive to get into condition commences.

Tommy Bolles first trained his crew over the mile route, and then stepped up the distance. He contends there isn't any reason why a great four-mile crew cannot also be a champion at shorter distances.

The race against the Navy and Penn will be over the Henley distance, and Bolles is confident his crew will give an excellent account of itself.

When the time comes around for the Harvard-Yale race, [illegible] the thousands of Harvard supporters making the trip to New London. And this year they will not make this trip merely to attend a party aboard somebody's yacht or to go to dinner with an old classmate. They will journey to New London chiefly to see a great Harvard crew defeat Yale.

WAR ADMIRAL REAL CHAMPION

WAR ADMIRAL, first rated as the greatest of the three-year-olds by Dave Wilson, should go on to take the Belmont stakes and later on the Arlington classic.

Pompoon gave War Admiral severe competition in the Preakness, but the son of Man O' War proved himself every inch a champion. Racing conditions were adverse, while War Admiral had been shipped from Kentucky for the Maryland race.

A Derby winner is always on the spot when he starts in the Preakness a week later. Everybody is out to beat the champion.

War Admiral got off to a good start, and it wasn't until the stretch run that Pompoon became a serious threat. War Admiral then showed he has what it takes to make a champion.

MUCHO GUSTO'S 'GANSETT VICTORY

MUCHO GUSTO, with Eddie Smith up, ran a fine race to win the Governor's Handicap at Narragansett Park. I saw Mucho Gusto run in Florida last winter, and at that time he was turning in only fair performances.

Walter O'Hara paid $7500 for the horse, and there were trainers who claimed the boss of Narragansett Park would never win his money back.

Mucho Gusto showed fine racing form in Maryland, and has been at his best while racing at Narragansett Park. He won the Narragansett Stake on the opening day, finished second to New Deal in the King Philip Handicap and won the Governor's Handicap in impressive style.

I think Mucho Gusto is running much better than New Deal. Once he gets out front he stays there. He doesn't have to rely upon a great stretch run to win as is the case with New Deal.

We all admire a first class finisher, but it often happens that a horse that waits until he hits the head of the stretch before making his bid for victory is unable to get past the leaders.

There is too much fighting for position in the closing part of a race and even the better horse is often shut out when he fails to make his move in time.

GIRL Stars Defend COURT GAME

Little Rock, Ark., May 17 (AP)—Three all American members of the Little Rock Flyers, National A. A. U. girls cage champions came forward today to challenge an assertion by a Georgia high school principal that basketball is "too strenuous" for girls.

The trio—Hazel Walker, Leota Barham and Lucille Thurman—said they had been playing the game for the past nine years and were yet to suffer "one ill effect."

Asserting his belief "great harm has been done to manyy girls" by engaging in basketball, T. H. Garrett, principal of an Augusta, Ga., high school, declared:

"It is high time that we put a stop to this pernicious practice of loading a lot of girls in automobiles and running them around the state to engage in contests that may do them serious injury."

Bees Leave for Cincinnati, Happy Over 11-Inning Win

By JOE CASHMAN

Their long losing streak broken, the Bees are today rolling toward Cincinnati, where on the morrow they'll open their first Western invasion of the season.

So, for the third time in four days, Boston is without a major league game this p. m.

The Sox will be back at the Fens tomorrow to open their first long home stand of the campaign.

Bill McKechnie's minions departed in a very happy frame of mind.

They dropped eight out of 12 games during their sojourn at the Hive but they forgot all about that when "Deacon Dan" MacFayden led them out of the wilderness of seven straight defeats by turning in an 11-inning victory over Van Lingle Mungo and his still daffy Dodger mates.

It was a game that made a lot of people forget a lot of things and left 13,600 Sabbath customers badly in need of a heart stimulant.

Depending on which side of the fence you sat, both MacFayden and Mungo should have won easily or been whipped decisively in regulation distance.

DiMag's Boner

No matter what your leanings, though, you had to admit when it was all over that Somerville Danny deserved the decision, his second of the year.

For the "Deacon" singled to open the 11th and romped home with the winning run on the wings of a single by the amazingly-improved Vin DiMaggio, who thereby atoned for an early game brainstorm which had prevented the Swarm winning in nine frames.

That was a fitting climax to a spine-tingling show, with plenty of comedy relief, that had been going on for three hours.

The Bees should have been the first to score but they blew the chance in the third because "DiMag," on first when Roy Johnson doubled off the glove of the glass-armed Heinie Manush, forgot there were two out.

Instead of galloping around, Vince stopped to see whether the pill would be caught and was forced to halt at third, where he expired.

On the theory that one good break deserves another the Dodgers helped themselves to a run lead in the fourth. But they weren't hoggish. They refused another tally in the fifth.

So our heroes, no end encouraged, tied the count in the sixth.

Fourth Hit

It happened that Gene Moore picked out the afternoon to snap out of a prolonged batting slump and, after getting singles on his two trips to the platter, he stepped up in the sixth and laced out a double which chased Tony Cuccinello all the way home from first.

The Dodgers, seeking win No. 5 both for themselves and Mungo, got nasty and went a run up again in the eighth.

Right back came the natives, with Mr. Moore getting his fourth straight bingle and galloping home from first when Elbie Fletcher propelled a double off the left field parapet.

Wally Berger, pinch hitting again, had a chance to end it all in the tenth but he fanned with the sacks full.

The Dodgers had given plenty of evidence up to this point that there was no truth to the rumor that they had turned sane, sensible and conservative and would no longer add to the gaiety of nations.

Woody English, on second, with one out, had tried to steal third with the count 3 and 2 on Mungo. He was nipped as Van Lingle walked so that there was a hostile on first with two out instead of two on with one out and the next batter produced a single to no avail.

The same English had opened another frame with a single and had promptly fallen asleep and been picked off first.

Mungo had committed a balk and Boss Burleigh Grimes had roared like a maniac.

But still there was some doubt. The Flatbush funnymen seemed to be showing flashes of intelligence now and then.

The eleventh frame, however, set at rest all fears that the Dodgers were going straight.

McGowan Goes

Our old Fenway friend, Tom Winsett, pinch-hitting with one gone, lined a single to right. English lined the next pitch to the same spot. It looked like curtains. It was for the Dodgers.

Ol' Tom started for second, reversed his field and started back to first and then, deciding he couldn't beat the batter to that bag, just stood still while Moore picked up the ball and whipped it to second for a force-out.

It wasn't Winsett's fault that MacFayden's single in the home half dropped safely when either Lavagetto or Manush could have caught it by merely sticking their gloves out, but Mungo blamed Long Tom for everything and took a punch at him at the hotel later on.

Yes, we're happy to report, they're the same daffy Dodgers.

Bob Quinn, president of the Bees, announced before the game that Outfielder Frank McGowan had been returned to Buffalo.

The 35-year-old "rookie" underwent two major surgical operations last winter, and the weeks he spent in bed left his ankles so weak that he was unable to contend for the berth he had been expected to win in the garden.

The passing of the popular New Haven boy reduces the Bees roster to 22, leaving room for one addition, and it means that Vince DiMaggio will be retained unless something totally unexpected happens.

FERRELL, De Shong Pitch 'RUBBER'

Washington, D. C., May 17 [illegible]—Boston Red Sox and Washington Senators close their three-game series here this afternoon. Wes Ferrell is Boston's starting pitcher. Jimmy DeShong [illegible] for the home side.

It is the "rubber" contest, for the Sox squared the count in the Sunday game when they defeated the Nats, 6-5, in 12 innings before 16,000 spectators.

Eric "Booby" McNair, who has played little or no ball this year, was the hero.

It was like this.

The score was tied at 5-all. Jimmy Foxx, out of his long slump (and what a difference it makes to the Sox!) opened the inning with a single to left, his third hit of the game. Pinky Higgins sacrificed him to second. Rick Ferrell popped out weakly to center field.

It was Bobby Doerr's turn to bat. Bobby was hit in the head by one of Ed Linke's fast balls earlier in the season and was in the hospital for a couple of days as a result. On top of this psychological handicap, Bobby has not been hitting any too robustly.

So little "Booby" was sent up to hit. And hit he did. He zoomed Linke's two and one ball past Ossie Bluege at short and Foxx scampered home with the winning run.

What the Stars Did

By the Associated Press

TOM HENRICH, Yankees—Hit homer, triple and single, driving in four runs in 8-4 win over Athletics.

ERIC McNAIR, Red Sox—Pinch-hit single in 12th inning brought in winning run for 6-5 victory over Senators.

VINCE DIMAGGIO, Bees—Singled in 11th to send deciding run across in 3-2 win over Dodgers.

CLAUDE PASSEAU, Phillies—Shut out Giants with five hits and drove two runs in with double in 8-0 win.

JOE BOWMAN and ARKY VAUGHAN, Pirates — Former muffled Cards with six hits; Vaughan's double drove in first run in 2-1 win.

MINTER HAYES, White Sox—Hit two singles and batted in two runs in 6-4 win over Indians.

HARVARD Courts Site OF PLAY

TRIP TO COAST FOR WINNERS

First announcements concerning the Hearst Grand National Amateur Tennis Championship were greeted with hearty approval by New England's players.

The big event, which promises to set a new entry mark, will in this, the New England sectional competition, be held at Harvard's Soldiers Field courts, the week of Monday, June 28.

The [illegible] of the 30 [illegible] kept Harvard clay courts is an admirable one and offers a fitting background for a title event of such magnitude.

The New England play is one of many sectional [illegible] being held at a corresponding date as a preliminary to the Hearst Grand National Championship which will take place during the summer at Los Angeles.

Fees Paid

Those who qualify from New England will be sent to California with all expenses paid.

The idea behind the whole movement is to unearth new tennis players who may some day take their place as United States representatives in Davis Cup play.

All traveling fees will be taken care of by the Hearst sponsoring newspapers in Boston.

Three separate divisions will be contended: men's singles, women's singles and men's doubles.

All matches will be best two out of three sets until the semi-finals of men's singles and doubles semi-finals and finals, which will be best three out of five sets.

Balls will be furnished semi-finalists and finalists. In earlier rounds contestants must supply their own.

16 or Over

The Hearst [illegible] held throughout the country will be open to all men and women players over 16 PROVIDED they have NOT been officially ranked by the U. S. L. T. A. during the past four years (1933-34-35-36) in men's national singles first [illegible], women's national singles or as a team in men's national doubles.

The lists of the past four years show, however, that no male player from New England has been seeded and that only Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan and Miss Katherine Winthrop have been ranked officially in New England.

So let us urge all tennis players of New England, regardless of previous experience, to enter [illegible] tourney.

The chance of making the trip to Los Angeles, all expenses paid, awaits the fortunate, the chance, too, of becoming one of the nation's featured players.

Drop the Anzac Barrier at Belmont

New York, May 17 (INS)—Joseph E. Widener, president of the Westchester Racing Association, today notified Marshall Cassidy, steward for the New York Racing Commission, that he will suspend temporarily the use of the Australian barrier at Belmont Park.

Widener is taking this action to comply with the wishes of the public and horsemen. He hopes that the future will induce those sympathetic to a better system of starting to demand the change from stalls to some other method.

Agua Caliente, Mex., May 17 (AP)—Sunderland, two-year-old race horse, was electricuted last night when he nibbled through an electric cord a stable helper had placed in his stall.

ANN MARSTERS' BEST BETS FOR TODAY

ANN MARSTERS

Ann Marsters, only girl handicapper, today picked JOHN WERRING to win the fourth race at Narragansett Park, and KING BONNY to win the eighth.

ANN MARSTERS' BEST BETS

$2 Win, John Werring, Narragansett 4th

$2 Win, King Bonny, Narragansett 8th

BANKROLL $472.60. DAY'S PLAY $4.

This is the last week of racing of the present Narragansett Park meeting, and will also bring to a close Miss Marsters' novel betting experiment.

Walter O'Hara has given Miss Marsters $1000 under the terms of which $500 has already been donated to the Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser.

The other $500 is being used by Miss Marsters as a betting stake to determine whether the races can be beaten if one is conservative and wagers on only two races a day.

Under the conditions of the O'Hara offer, the experiment will end on Saturday.

DIXIANA Entry Best BET

WILSON'S BEST BET OF DAY

By DAVE WILSON
(Selections for Fast Track)

BEST BET—DIXIANA ENTRY, 5TH RACE.

Narragansett Park, May 17—Erin Torch and Miss Prudence, which will run coupled as the Dixiana entry, should experience little difficulty in finishing as named in the six furlongs of the Falmouth Purse, fifth and feature number here today.

FIRST—Sure Cloud, Araho Lass, Rhett

SEVENTH—Makeit, Brush Past, Regardless

[illegible] stall walk [illegible] raced to a [illegible] new [illegible], with the handcappers when Racing Secretary Pat Horgan hit them smack-dab between the eyes with this mystery of mysteries. Most of the entrants, which will be ridden by maiden jockeys, haven't form enough to recommend them for the front end of a second-class milk wagon. My guess is [illegible] MAKEIT, which managed to stagger into the money on several recent occasions, will grab off [illegible] with BRUSH PAST and REGARDLESS finishing as named.

EIGHTH—King Bonny, Last Romance, Strange Times

[illegible] to Rosepath and Still [illegible] in his last start Ed Haughton's KING BONNY seemingly holds a wide edge over this group of [illegible] top platers. LAST ROMANCE, which was only a length [illegible] the top selection in the above [illegible] race looms all over the main danger. STRANGE TIMES has had the benefit of a tightener in a sprint race.

SUB RACE—Doctor C. N., High Martin, Harp o'Gold

DOCTOR C. N. finished only one length in back of Dishalong in his last race. The latter in two straight wins has easily drubbed practically every horse in this field. HIGH MARTIN and HARP O' GOLD figure to offer the contention. They rate as named.

Horner Family Sets Golf Mark

Montgomery, Ala., May 17 (AP)—The golfing Horners—"Pop" and his three boys—held a probable all-time family record today—29 birdies and an eagle in a 36-hole match over the par-72 Beauvoir Country Club course here.

Their foursome best-ball was only 12 under par, for many of the birdies were scored on the same holes.

Horace Horner, Sr.—"Pop" to his long-hitting sons—teamed up with Scudday, 19-year-old amateur who won the Southeastern PGA in 1936, against Horace, Jr., and Jack, both in their 'teens, to see if they "could take it."

BIKE CHIEF IN WARNING

Urges Boys To Start Training

Reggie Murphy, chief marshal of the Jefferson Club boys bicycle marathon race, to be contested on Sunday, June 6, urges every boy intending to compete to start his training for the big event immediately.

"Condition is everything in a race of this nature," Marshal Murphy insists.

"There is a major difference between amateur and professional riding.

"The pro has learned through long experience judgment of pace, the value of saving much of his strength for the closing miles.

Any veteran bike rider will back up Murphy's remark.

FORBES RACES AT DIGHTON

In anticipation of another banner year for greyhound racing in Massachusetts, the tracks at Revere, Springfield and Taunton are rapidly getting ready for their respective openings.

* * *

Wonderland, Revere, [illegible] June 2. The other tracks get underway [illegible] a week later.

* * *

The beach city plant, largest in this country, which has consistently shattered all attendance and mutuel handle records, has undergone a number of changes.

* * *

A new stand with seating accommodations for 2500 persons has been constructed. A new battery of mutuel windows has been installed under the new stand.

A new [illegible] with additional rail space has been laid out in front of the new stand where patrons can catch an uninterrupted view of the races. The new area will eliminate overcrowding, such as prevailed on big nights at the track last year.

* * *

The entire Wonderland plant has been "hard topped" with asphalt. This should be good news especially for the ladies. The work had to be delayed until this year because of the character of the ground upon which the plant is constructed.

* * *

* * *

Perry Alderson, whose kennel stars are well known, returns again to Springfield this year. His celebrated Bad Sally, which also ran at Revere, will be among the entries when the greyhounds go to post.

* * *

The Taunton track [illegible] Some of the outstanding kennel proprietors who have been booked at Dighton are Walter Forbes, noted stove manufacturer, Art Wilson, Frank Fair, Joe Williams and J. Lavoie.

* * *

[illegible] Russell [illegible] of Wonderland, has [illegible] completed his [illegible] Florida [illegible] Revere by [illegible] Forbes [illegible] steward [illegible] the best known in [illegible] arrived from Red Wood City, Cal. [illegible]

Mrs. George Richmond Fearing of Westwood, prominent society woman, will send her racing greyhounds again to Revere. She has 20 speed stars in her kennels. Her noted Play Menace, which raced at Wonderland last year, will undoubtedly prove one of the outstanding stars at the beach.

THE BRIGHTER SIDE

By DAMON RUNYON

Damon Runyon

It seems that some folks in New York State are in quite a lather about the matter of greyhound racing. The recent legislature passed a bill permitting this form of [illegible] and the [illegible] up to Gov. Lehman [illegible]

We do not think the Governor will sign the bill for two very important reasons. One is that it is [illegible] with reference to the New York State constitution. The other is that it provides no revenue to the State [illegible] the bill [illegible]

But [illegible] Governor Lehman has [illegible] in Albany today and many persons who are opposed to dog racing will appear before him and utter public squawks.

It is assumed that perhaps some who favor it will be there to speak for approval and their appearance is awaited with interest as there is a bit of mystery as to the exact identity of those who desire dog racing in New York.

Just Popped Up

The circumstances of the passing of the bill are a bit puzzling. There had been no advance chatter of a move to legalize dog racing in this state and certainly no public clamor or preliminary propaganda in favor thereof. Of a sudden the bill popped up in the legislature and went through with bewildering facility. Before those who oppose dog racing could catch their breath the bill was on the Governor's desk.

It appears, however, that the boys behind the bill were in too much of a hurry, and they probably defeated their own purpose.

No Argument

So we do not deem it necessary [illegible]

We do not think that dog racing would [illegible] for New York state but we are not strict [illegible] dog racing as a general proposition [illegible]

[illegible] New York.

ing, but we must admit that dog racing is more humane than horse racing. It is not necessary to put [illegible] in a dog's [illegible] stand in the starting gate.

We have never seen a jockey on a dog's back whaling it with a whip to make it run. Nor do we recall ever having heard of a racing dog being destroyed because of a broken leg [illegible] We think dog running [illegible] as prize fighting [illegible] states.

Let us keep the [illegible] York state [illegible] course that the [illegible] undesirable element [illegible] as much of [illegible] element that is found at the dog tracks at [illegible] at the horse races [illegible] fights and baseball games and other sports [illegible] not [illegible] be too [illegible] than [illegible]

$2,000,000 Jackpot

Of course, no matter what, we are not [illegible] racing in spots in New York [illegible] as we have had without benefit of law for some time and just as we used to have horse racing without benefit of law, at least with reference to betting, and the [illegible] bookmaker [illegible] by this state.

We think we handle the matter a lot better down in Dade County, Florida, despite the occasional [illegible] of journalistic visitors from the north at some of our institutions. We have [illegible] and dog racing [illegible] pari-mutuel [illegible] and we grab about $2,000,000 [illegible] the jackpot every year in taxes which is spread out over all the counties of the state for benefits.

We permit these enterprises to operate about 120 days out of the year and we get [illegible] in that period [illegible] New York in [illegible] in six months. Our [illegible] down there perhaps [illegible] we legalize one form of [illegible] we do not [illegible] bookmakers [illegible] and all [illegible]

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

A Nationwide Organization Devoted To American Youth in Aviation

By L. F. ROSS
Boston Wing Commander

A surprise party will climax the week of entertainment to be provided for the 17 outdoor model plane wing champions, including the New England title holder, who meet at Atlanta, Ga. in August to decide the national championship.

The 17 will be the Junior Birdmen who emerge as high point scorers in their respective wing competitions, most of which have been scheduled for June. The New England meet will be held at Franklin Field on July 12 and the winner will receive the silver trophy of the Boston American and will be sent on August 3 to Atlanta with all his expenses paid by this newspaper.

Fred Wyshak

From there on they will enjoy a [illegible] baseball game between the Atlanta and [illegible] teams, leaders of the Southern Baseball [illegible] [illegible] will be [illegible] an [illegible] Atlanta [illegible] Air Lines [illegible] mile trip to Fort Bennington, where army pilots and ground forces will give a three-hour demonstration.

Every model builder in New England is eligible to compete in the Boston meet for the opportunity to represent the Boston American wing at the Atlanta classic.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

(Membership open to all boys and girls 10 to 21)

I wish to join the Junior Birdmen of America. I enclose a dime (well wrapped) for my gold wings and other membership materials.

City .... State ....

My Age Is Now...................(Give Your CORRECT Age)

Mail to Junior Birdmen, Boston American Wing, 100 Summer St., Boston, Mass.

To enter simply write a letter to Junior Birdmen, 100 Summer street, Boston, requesting a free manual. Three cents in stamps should be enclosed for return postage. The manuals contain entry blanks, specifications of models, list of prizes and other information.

Among the contestants will be members of the new Comets squadrons of Abraham Lincoln school, commanded by Fred Wyshak and sponsored by the headmaster Frederick W. Swan.

Other contestants who have already filed their entries are:

Allston—James Gillis; Boston—Jerry Markis, Glenn O'Roak, John Pirelli and Thomas Matarazzo, Jr.; Dorchester—Sanford Oringer, Sumner Alpert, Arnold Greenbaum and Constantine Pappas; East Boston—George Elberfeld, Arthur Zaino, Dante Giardini, Douglas Hannon, Warren Avola and William Maze.

* * *

Louis Wright, captain, and Clarence Sullivan of the Flying Jinx squadron, Roxbury, have been chosen to contact other units in Roxbury.

Boys who apply for membership in this group will be accepted only after constructing a model plane and presenting it to the squadron.

Contents of the club treasury will soon enable all members to buy model plane materials. Among models to be built will be a Hawk, an R. O. G. cabin, a Puss Moth and an F4B4.

* * *

Squadron members are "going to bat" this quarter for the Boston wing honor banner to be awarded July 1. Every live-wire squadron wants to capture it from the Speed Aces of the Banks-Newhall school, Waltham. The Speed Aces won the award on April 1.

Points may be gained by getting new members for squadrons and for the organization, holding model plane contests visiting airports, seeing aviation pictures and attending and taking part in Boston wing activities including contests.

* * *

Edward G. Robinson, [illegible] picture actor, will be heard in a dramatic sketch during Richard Himber's program tonight (WBZ) at 10.00 p. m. The sketch will be a scene from "Rope," a play by Patrick Hamilton, produced in New York in 1929. Robinson will leave for Hollywood tomorrow morning. Himber's orchestra and Stuart Allen, tenor, will be heard as usual.

* * *

"Love Is the Song in My Heart," a composition of Mrs. Harvey S. Firestone, Sr., will be heard publicly for the first time on the air this evening (WNAC) at 8.30. It will be sung by Margaret Speaks, the program's soprano soloist. Mrs. Firestone is the author of "In My Garden," theme song of the weekly semi-classic program.

Richard Crooks, distinguished Metropolitan Opera tenor, plans to sing four solos: "Le Revere," from Massenet's "Manon"; Stephen Foster's "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming"; Lily Strickland's "Lindy Lou," and, accompanied by the Firestone male chorus, Pergolesi's "Nina."

TIMELY TALK

Mrs Mary Norton, Congresswoman from New Jersey, will discuss "The Value of Insurance for the Business and Professional Woman" with a coast-to-coast hookup (WEEI) arranged today from 4.15 to 4.30 p. m.

Mrs. Norton's talk was arranged by the League of Insurance Women in connection with National Life Insurance Week, May 17-22. The Hudson County Democratic Congresswoman is a member of the National Business and Professional Women's League.

* * *

Youthful talent will be presented in a new half-hour program of music making its debut (WBZ) this evening at 7 o'clock. The show, to be called Tic Toc Revue, will feature Barry McKinley, baritone network star; Jean O'Neill, beautiful 18-year-old singer; the "Tune Twisters" and Hughie Barrett and his orchestra.

* * *

Frank Black has in mind to lead the "Contented Hour" ensemble in a flying musical trip around the globe in the program (WNAC) tonight at 10 p. m. Starting with the United States, the program will tour from west to east all the way back to this continent, highlighting melodies typical of the various countries.

Mystery Veils Hunt for Woman

Harwichport, May 17—A mysterious telephone call was being investigated today in police search for Mrs. Lois Gebhard Small, mother of three children, who disappeared from her home last Friday.

The telephone caller announced Mrs. Small was "well and safe" but refused to give her identity. She denied she was Mrs. Small and refused to give Mrs. Small's whereabouts. The search was shifted to Wollaston, where the missing woman has relatives,

Stock Decline Wanes

AS POLITICAL CIRCLES

Ease Pressure

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)

New York, May 17—Suppose that you desired to stop a [illegible] in the stock market, and that you had the [illegible] Suppose further that you were a politician [illegible] popularity with the people for the power [illegible]

[illegible] leading up to is this: If you had definitely [illegible] ished fear as the predominant sentiment, [illegible] down ten per cent, would you be inclined [illegible] at the time people began to conclude that [illegible] must forecast an important decline in [illegible] upon the effects of that decline in making [illegible] sentiment bearish and even reducing many people's [illegible] power, wouldn't you ease up in your pressure?

I think that the answer is "yes." And that is one of the [illegible] I am not inclined to look for so much decline in the [illegible] from now on as we have been witnessing since Ma[illegible]

* * *

[illegible] believe that remarks made by Washing[illegible] be the sole market determinant. I consider [illegible] and especially the speculative collapse in Eng[illegible] factor. But it must be admitted that [illegible] managed currency and a partially managed [illegible] intentions and schemes of the managers will [illegible] shaping the course of the market. Thus the [illegible] have to be reckoned with.

[illegible] reasonable to say that if the stock market reaction [illegible] serious harm will be done to business and labor. [illegible] seems reasonable to anticipate that those who have [illegible] the market will be covering soon.

[illegible] significant that the most active stocks are no [illegible] which make gains each day. There is no longer [illegible] of manipulation for the rise. Brokers loans have [illegible] The price of Stock Exchange seats has fallen. The [illegible] are cowed.

[illegible] suggest that the tenor of press confer[illegible] Washington news may change, because "the boom has [illegible] reminds us that government borrowing [illegible] I think that, as a good many times in [illegible] be expedient to have the financial nerves so [illegible] if a new loan is to be floated on favorable [illegible]

* * *

Another point to consider lies in the question whether any [illegible] heavy selling of our stocks is to be expected from abroad, particularly from England. I have no way of knowing. It does seem to me, however, that last week's selling is likely to have taken care of the most necessitous of the post-settlement liquida[illegible]

I [illegible] signs at Washington of what used to be [illegible] I do not like the trend toward bringing a [illegible] But I cannot see how these trends can [illegible] as a government policy.

I do not like so much attempt to run economic life by politics. At the same time, I doubt if politics will ever "deflate" anything. And I will add that the market must be near the darkest hour when [illegible] gravely discuss the possibility that Washington will [illegible] with speculation entirely and limit stock purchases to a [illegible] That would be about as desirable and as feasible as [illegible] was.

* * *

[illegible] seem to be no definite indications of change; [illegible] say that some further saggy days may not be [illegible] I think that the momentum of the decline is waning, how[illegible] decline last week may possibly turn out to be [illegible] series of air pockets which have developed since [illegible]

Under present conditions, however, one cannot be sure of anything. Caution is still to be recommended.

REASONS for New G. M. SETUP

REPORTED TO STOCKHOLDERS

New York, May 17 (INS)—Explaining in detail the reasons for the company's recent changes in administrative setup, the General Motors Corp. quarterly report to stockholders today indicated that basically the desire was to segregate the making of policy from its administration, with a view to emphasis on the former.

The changes occurred at a board meeting on May 3, when Lammot du Pont was succeeded as chairman by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., whose former post as president was taken over by William S. Knudsen, for the past four years executive vice-president.

A policy committee and an administration committee were formed and the chairman of the board became chief executive officer instead of the president.

Pointing out that in a business as large and as diversified as General Motors, policy and administration must be dealt with to some degree independently, the report, signed by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., stated:

"While the success of any business will always depend upon efficient and intelligent administration, it is perfectly clear, in looking back over the past few years, as well as in attempting to discount the general trend as to the future, that the policy phase of management is becoming of greater and greater importance. And this is particularly true having regard for the period of rapid change through which the business of the world is now passing.

"In other words, upon the determination of sound general policies and the evolution of better administrative policies will importantly depend the corporation's future position."

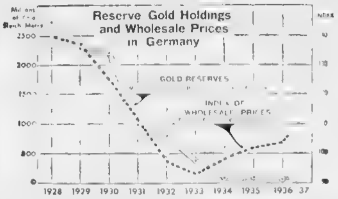
The new policy, the report holds, will permit more executive attention to policy, provide for transition of executive personnel through the corporation's service as experience and ability grow.

"All of these will serve to build a stronger foundation for progress, as well as to add stability to the business as it moves forward into the future," said the report.

The report reveals the decline in unit sales and earnings during the first quarter as consequence of the strike, and points out that after the strike in March production established a new all-time high.

Cash, United States Government and other marketable securities as of March 1 amounted to $223,715,706 against $218,034,223 the year before. Net working capital was $378,294,268 against $353,248,902.

Gold, Prices In Germany



This chart presents an opportunity to study the relationship—if any—between gold and commodity prices in one country. It shows the annual average gold holdings of the central bank of Germany, and the annual average of wholesale prices in that country on an index basis. Two months of 1937 are shown.

Roughly corresponding to each other, commodity prices and gold reserve dropped in each year from 1928 through 1933. The nation during this period was operating on a gold standard, and the economic view was that prices took their cue from the state of the gold reserves.

In 1934, however, it was evident that commodity prices were on an uptrend, despite a continued loss of gold reserves. The economic reason for this turn of affairs was that Germany was not strictly on a gold standard basis, and that some degree of inflation was influencing commodity prices. In 1935 and 1936, the opposing trends continued.

By February, 1937, the commodity prices index was fully six per cent above the base period of 1913, while gold reserves of Germany were still at an extremely low level—about 67 million reichsmarks, compared with about 375 million reichsmarks in 1933 and more than 2700 million reichsmarks in 1928.

War Debts

Foreigners Now in Position to Pay

Payments of war debts owed to the United States involve two problems: First, the raising of the local currency and, secondly, the transfer of funds into dollars, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute.

Raising the local currency is entirely a domestic matter and, if each country in default on its war debts to the United States had a willingness to do so, it could obtain the money at home. This would impose no greater burden upon each of these countries than the burden imposed on the United States in meeting the principal and interest payments on the loans contracted by this government, the proceeds of which were loaned to the Allied and Associated Powers during and shortly after the war.

MORE COMPLICATED

The transfer problem, on the other hand, is more complicated. The argument of the leading debtor nations to the United States on war debt account has been that the economic policies of the United States made such payment impossible. As long as the United States was a leading creditor nation and as long as it had a continuous excess of exports over imports, the transfer of funds to this country was extremely difficult, if not impossible.

However, developments during the past few years have shown that the transfer problem is not as serious as is generally believed. Since January 30, 1934 when the dollar was devalued, billions of dollars came to the United States in the form of gold from countries in default on their war debts. Furthermore, and perhaps of much more importance, is the fact that the international financial position of the United States has changed materially.

The large inflow of foreign capital to this country, the repatriation of foreign dollar bonds and the default on a number of foreign obligations in the United States have resulted in a situation where the United States today is a debtor nation on its portfolio investments. Since foreign capital continues to flow in large amounts to the United States, its debtor position is steadily increasing.

FOREIGN TRADE POLICIES

Moreover, the foreign trade policies of the United States have changed materially. Secretary Hull has recognized the fact that, in order to export, nations must import, and he has therefore concluded a number of reciprocal tariff agreements based on this doctrine.

Partly as a result of these agreements, imports into the United States have increased materially. Exports, on the other hand, have failed to keep pace with the volume of imports. The result was that during 1936 the excess of exports over imports of the United States amounted to only $33,272,000 as compared with $377,772,000 in 1926.

Partly as a result of the decline in exports and partly because of the increased payments of foreign investments, the balance of payments of the United States on current account has become unfavorable.

It is therefore obvious that the transfer problem is not as great as it was in previous years and that foreign countries are now in a position to pay a substantial amount on war debts account.

Hourly Pay Rate Improves Over 1914

Inmprovements since 1914 in the economic status of wage earners in manufacturing industry are reviewed in a study made public by the National Industrial Conference Board.

Average hourly earnings in manufacturing industry, the survey shows, have risen from 24.7 cents in July, 1914, to an average of 64.6 cents in the first three months of 1937, an advance of 162 per cent. At the present time hourly earnings in manufacturing are at the highest point that has ever been recorded since industrial statistics have been regularly compiled.

FEDERAL Power PLAN

CONSOLIDATION PROPOSED

Washington, May 17 (AP)—A proposal to consolidate all federal power activities under one agency reached Congress today in a Brookings Institution report.

Chairman Byrd (D., Va.) said the institution, retained by his special Senate committee on government reorganization, had expressed the opinion that substantial savings would result.

This, the report explained, was suggested "on the assumption that an operating agency functioning as a yardstick should not be permitted to regulate its own production or determine its own rates."

Congressional leaders said meanwhile, they expected the President to recommend by Wednesday a national program for power development, flood control, reforestation and soil conservation.

Senator Norris (Ind-Neb) has prepared legislation to create several regional authorities similar to TVA. He has conferred with the President and said the measure would be introduced in a few days.

Along with these developments the Public Works Administration announced a "box score" of its fight in the courts over its phase of the federal power program.

Five Victories

It reported five victories and no defeats in circuit courts of appeals decisions, and six victories out of nine lower court cases in which it was a defendant.

If the Brookings recommendations were followed the PWA power program would be consolidated with the Federal Power Commission, the rural electrification administration and the electric home and farm authority under a federal power administration.

"There does not appear to be any method of separating the functions of the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Federal Power Commission with respect to public utility companies without impairing the effectiveness of the agencies," said the report.

The committee to which the institution is making a series of reports on government reorganization was set up long before President Roosevelt asked Congress last winter to revise Federal agencies on more efficient basis.

Chairman Byrd criticized the President's program on the ground that it would not save any great amount of money. A separate committee of senators and representatives subsequently was created to consider Mr. Roosevelt's recommendations, but Byrd's group is continuing its own study.

Gas & Electric

Continental Gas & Electric Corp. and subsidiaries report for 12 months ended March 31, 1937 net income of $4,470,341, equal to $14.69 a common share against $3,636,7[illegible] or $10.75 a share in 12 months ended March 31, 1936.

STOCK PROSPECTS:

ACTUAL CUT UNLIKELY NOW?

A Question of Timing

By BROADAN WALL
Universal Service

New York, May 17—Some people now suggest that the mere threat of a cut in the price of gold, which they blame for breaking the market, has by its success ended the chance for an actual cut. Some of these people before the break were of the opinion that the gold price had little influence on the markets.

In some degree, however, [illegible] probably have correctly gauged the present situation.

Months ago President Roosevelt, seeing the danger of the boom then in full swing, decided to [illegible] In a series of courageous public warnings, the President outlined the specific dangers.

He cautioned that foreign [illegible] was subject to nervous emotions and withdrawal without notice.

He went further and named specific commodities as [illegible] among many too high [illegible] the general welfare.

He said stock [illegible] running wild.

* * *

The President acted in an obvious effort to retain the recovery which had been achieved. He did not want speculators to spoil the fruits of this recovery or to destroy the chances for its further improvement or maintenance.

It is better, thus to have steel operations at 80 per cent over a period of years than to have them rush up to capacity for a brief spell and collapse. It would be better, too, if prices were not advanced beyond the capacity of consumers to pay. Exaggerated [illegible] for steel should prove the most serious detriment to building, for instance. Yet a reasonable price, other things being equal, [illegible] able, would do much to encourage building expansion.

The same thing was happening all along the line. Excluding exaggerated speculation on war prospects many commodities had been booming at a rate threatening to bring a buyers' strike. This is not theory, it was beginning to show in the stores and in industry. Retailers frankly admitted a serious buying slump was threatening.

* * *

Over in Europe a speculative orgy months ago was beginning to topple. Instead of being extreme conservatives, the English in particular went haywire. They gambled heavily in their own and our stocks in commodities of every shade and character.

They counted on war, reckless inflation or just downright period of gambling to "take them out" at a profit.

For a time while speculation held at white-heat, the markets boomed. Then came the inevitable [illegible] First, war clouds, at least temporarily, were blown away. Then inflation failed to come in time and in volume to preserve the boom.

In place of extreme confidence, nervousness and then fear developed and as prices crumbled it spread in London into an hysteria.

The gold cut rumor came amidst this already weakened market and gave a new push to the slump.

Our stock market has not suffered proportionately as much as the London market but we are not far behind. The sequence is exactly what was feared by conservatives here who saw the dangers not only in our own market over [illegible] but also in the English speculation.

* * *

Now these are things that President Roosevelt undoubtedly recognized as clearly as any [illegible]

He knew that he held a powerful weapon in his authority to reduce the price of gold. [illegible] this weapon when the prices were booming, however, would have brought disastrous [illegible] surprise would have been [illegible] effective [illegible]

With the markets fully prepared, almost expecting such action, the influence on prices would be much less severe. At least some part of its influence would surely have been discounted by the slump in prices.

Whether it had been fully discounted, however, depends on the extent of any reduction which may be made.

Drastic Cut in W. U. Rates Effective June 1

"The effect of these reductions," Mr. Groves said, "is that the charge for 25 words will be the same as, and in some cases lower than, the present charge for a 10-word night message, and that long messages can be sent at relatively even lower rates.

"These new overnight rates will enable the public to lay down communications everywhere at the opening of business the following morning, with absolute certainty and at extremely low cost, whether the message be short or long.

"They should free the minds of the public from any thought [illegible] there is occasion to restrict the number of words in such communications. In fact the rates are designed to afford the widest opportunity for the fullest expression at little cost in both business and social correspondence."

TVA Blamed for C & S's Financing Difficulties

Officials of the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation during the period of the new money market attempted "repeatedly" to interest investment firms in the southern companies of its system, the annual report says. Such firms were "wholly unwilling" to enter into underwriting commitments in the face of the uncertainties created by the Tennessee Valley Authority operation."

The threat and potential threat of these operations have rendered the southern operating units unable to finance even construction requirements and maturing bonds.

The more than one million residential electric consumers of the Commonwealth & Southern system during 1936 paid an average of only 3.52 cents a kilowatt hour, which was 25 per cent less than the national average, the report remarks. The average annual use of these customers increased from [illegible] to 955 kilowatt hours, "which is 230 more than the national average."

This increase in residential use was a reflection in large part of the effectiveness of the system's sales promotion activities. "The system continued during the year to lead the country in the sale of electric and gas appliances," the report declares. "Of all the utility companies east of the Mississippi River reporting their dollar sales of electric appliances per residential customer nine of our eleven operating companies were in the top ten and of all of the companies in the country so reporting, eight of the top twelve were Commonwealth & Southern operating companies."

Gold Uncertainty

Problem DEMANDS Solution

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

There is one fundamental factor of uncertainty in the present situation that should be, and could be, eliminated by government action, in the opinion of the American Institute of Finance. And that concerns gold.

It has been engendered, under the large imports of the yellow metal into this country, by the so-called "24-hour policy" of the Treasury, and has already become a vital problem.

In considering the subject the Boston investment counsel headed by James R. Bancroft does not limit itself to criticism alone, as so many do. A partial solution at least is offered that should end talk of a reduced price for gold restriction of imports. The Institute's current bulletin frankly admits that there are immediate objections to the steps it suggests, but adds that it should be remembered, however, that existing conditions cannot continue indefinitely. Something will have to be done.

* * *

Since boom conditions similar to those of 1929 do not exist today it seems to the Institute that a remedy lies in a series of steps rather than in a gold price reduction. First, discouragement of gold production, without a price change, through imposition of a graduated tax on newly mined metal, in all the chief producing countries of the world, for the purpose of checking output of high cost mines. This would be accompanied by establishment of a free gold market in this country along with the third step calling for removal of existing restrictions on ownership of gold by private citizens. Some selfish opposition would surely result but to a much less extent than if gold's price were cut or if it were embargoed.

* * *

As for disturbances likely to follow the development of such a program there would be some as the Institute itself points out. But any disturbance now would necessarily be less than when existing maladjustments become more intense. Finally the writer wants to note that regardless of personal views the future of gold can hardly be viewed as bullish and those owning stocks in yellow metal producers might well consider a change.

* * *

The stock market faces a mixed outlook as the week opens. Of primary importance in the sessions to come will be the development of anticipated indications that a base is forming following the slide of early spring. That this will be an irregular affair goes without saying. Individual groups will undoubtedly "kancer-out" before the list as a whole and as we see it our immediate task is to locate such situations. The process could take place during a period of irregularity while the composite industrial average itself was seeking a new low.

* * *

At this writing the artificial silk group still appears to occupy as strong a position as any on the board. Celanese and Industrial Rayon might be picked up on reactions from here on: which constitutes the first use of liquid resources suggested. The second use is in granger rails, but do not exhaust cash.

* * *

Notebook: Mid Continent Pete has increased its holdings of oil fields which will lift its production considerably . . . Earnings for this year we understand will better the $2.57 per share shown in '36 by a fair margin as a result . . . The impression in certain trading circles is that Allis Chalmers is not attractive at current levels . . . First the big issue of new preferred will cut into earnings on the common and second when as and if the common touches 75 the conversion of the new preferred will be a rather formidable obstacle to price enhancement.

STOCKS Drift LOWER

TRADING DULL

New York, May 17—Stocks drifted lower in extremely dull trading today, after making moderate progress on the upside through the first hour.

Volume was restricted by the closing of British markets for the annual Whitsuntide holiday and a general movement to the sidelines in anticipation of a possible Supreme Court decision on the Social Security Act.

Selling was initiated in the steels, with Bethlehem, Republic and U. S. Steel slipping fractionally and Youngstown about a point. A showdown between independent steel firms and the CIO is expected this week, the latter seeking agreements similar to the one reached with Jones & Laughlin recently.

American Tobacco "B" and Reynolds Tobacco "B", Standard Oil of N. J., and Public Service of N. J., dropped to new low ground for the year.

Gains by Chrysler, General Motors, American Smelting, Kennecott, Atchison, N Y. Central, Northern Pacific and American Telephone were converted into losses.

Bonds were generally lower, though governments were independently firm. Grains displayed a mixed trend. Cotton had early gains wiped out.

Current Factors

In addition to further strike threats, brokerage quarters noted the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said lessened pressure for deliveries has eased the position of producers who are now able to make progress in reducing backlogs.

While buying is satisfactory, the review added, it was dropped below shipments and it is now possible to obtain fairly prompt delivery of some products. At the same time it was believed the industry has enough orders on hand to maintain the present output rate through July.

An indication of the decline in current demand was seen in the experience of one important producer whose bookings in the last three weeks were off about 33 per cent from a former level above capacity.

At the beginning of foreign exchange transactions the French franc was up .00¼ of a cent at 4.48¼ cents. Sterling was unchanged at $4.94¾.

$2 DuPont Interim Common Dividend

E. I. Du Pont De Nemours & Company declared a quarterly interim dividend of $2 on the common, payable June 15 to stock of record May 27. Last previous interim dividend was 75 cents, paid March 15.

Last year the company paid dividends of 90 cents March 14, 70 cents extra and 90 cents quarterly June 15, 70 cents extra and 90 cents quarterly September 15 and $2 December 15 or a total of $6.10 for the year.

Directors have called special meeting of the stockholders for June 18 to act on proposed amendment to article 4 of the certificate of incorporation to create 500,000 shares of $4.50 preferred stock cumulative without par value. This would be junior to the present debenture stock.

Comments of Brokers

There appears to be better than an even chance of a continuation of caution and a highly selective demand on buying side.—E. A. Pierce & Co.

We feel that the influences which induced the current decline will have spent their force before the month is out.—J. E. Molloy—Hornblower & Weeks.

We look for rising prices here in stocks of those companies whose earnings are continuing higher.—G. M.—P. Murphy & Co.

Expect further irregularity in early future, as individual issues test out their new lows of last week.—H. D. Comer—Paine, Webber & Co.

There are no available methods for measuring a situation of this kind, it must run its course to exhaustion. The general price unsettlement so reduced, however, gives rise to many opportunities for carefully selected longer term commitments.—J. S. Bache & Co.

At current levels, however, technical conditions alone promise any period of strength, and such flurries should be regarded as affording trading opportunities with commitments lightened on all advances.—J. P. Maher—Shields & Co.

TOTAL Activity RISING

'SHAKEOUT' HELPFUL

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

Copyright, 1937, by Universal Service

New York, May 17—Except for the later winter realization that prices couldn't take an uninterrupted elevator ascent to the moon, little has occurred in the business world to indicate a change of trend.

On the contrary, total economic activity has recently been advancing again. Automobile production has climbed to a new recovery peak, and steel output has increased slightly.

In comparison with a year ago, the net improvement is striking. Automobile production climbed to 141,892 units last week, compared with 117,156 a year ago. Steel mills worked at 91.2 per cent of capacity against 69.1 per cent a year ago. Heavy engineering awards stood at $62,701,000, against $30,257,000 a year ago.

The price comparisons are equally impressive. Despite the fact that sensitive commodity prices at wholesale recently dropped to a new low level for the year, Moody's commodity price index (with December 31, 1931, prices considered as 100) was at 203.4, compared with 163.1 a year ago, and despite the fact that common stocks prices at last week's low point were at the lowest ebb for 1937, they were still sharply ahead of a year ago. Even bond prices were higher. The Standard Statistics index of 90 stocks (with 1926 prices as 100) fell to 124.3, compared with 110.9 a year ago, and the Standard Bond index for 60 bonds was at 96.0, against 95.4 a year ago.

With the economic groups in reasonable balance, there is no reason why recovery cannot continue if government and labor unions will cooperate with business management.

The current difficulties spring in large measure from political mismanagement at home and abroad. The foreign interference centers around an inability of the European nations to achieve moral disarmament, with the result that production is distorted into nonproductive military channels. At home, chronic deficits and arbitrary price fixing of gold and credit rates inject artificial elements into the situation, which are confusing to business men seeking to project into the future the probable trend of supply and demand factors.

In addition, business men are unable to perceive clearly the outcome of current labor adventures and of additional political experiments.

However, with a shakedown of security and commodity prices, the business world is in much better position than at the March peak to take these political and labor risks in its stride.

In addition, make no mistake of the fact that business men can operate more successfully if prices steady. Continuous inflationary advances, on the other hand, threaten the prospects of business profits. They spell losses as business men become whipsawed in fluctuations, and they mean ultimate sharp inventory write-downs. In addition, inflation tends to make for progressive shortages of working capital. Besides, inflation tends to make operating expenses rise even more rapidly than gross receipts.

The vicious price-wage spiral has been broken, and management and workers, in considering wage questions, are now in a position to face realities. The goal should be to keep the incomes of the various employed groups in balanced relationships. The effort should be to increase real wages through improved productivity and heightened industrial efficiency. Such an attitude is different from the disposition last winter to pad payrolls uncritically and attempt to recoup by boosting selling prices correspondingly. That latter approach is not the traditional American method of lifting popular living standards.

However, until sound economic policies are adopted, the country faces the risk of fluctuating between inflationary and deflationary episodes. This danger could be averted by balancing the Federal budget, by letting interest rates find their own level, and by stopping the importation of newly-mined foreign gold.

On such a basis, Washington could be helpful in again bringing to the forefront the second objective of a balanced internal economy.

It seems to me that the country is getting nearer a realistic basis. The public will soon demand good management from its public officials, who will no longer be able to hold popular support merely by attacking and exploiting the earlier mistakes of private business and finance. Instead of looking back to the errors of 1929, discriminating voters are likely to demand correction of the inconsistencies of 1937.

CAUTION RIFE

Trade ACTIVE, STOCKS Down

By B. C. FORBES

Stocks sharply lower.

Immediately he returned, President Roosevelt summoned Congressional leaders and outlined a lengthy "must" program of legislation, almost wholly unacceptable to the employing classes: recasting the Supreme Court, a $1,500,000,000 work relief appropriation, regulation of maximum hours and minimum wages, an ambitious farm tenancy program, and, most disliked of all by industry, far-reaching anti-utility proposals.

That Washington will be a disturbing influence for months, that Congress will be held in session abnormally long, that President Roosevelt is setting no limit to additional "reforms," that Federal finances threaten to go from bad to worse, is widely believed in responsible business and financial quarters.

* * *

The kind of "planning" now being conducted, especially in handling public finance, is almost universally criticized as contradictory, unsound, unbusiness like. With one hand the administration is striving to make money dearer; with the other it is trying to keep money rates lower. Any corporation management acting similarly would be ousted for incompetency.

Incidentally the world continues to ship gold to the United States government for a fancy price. Deeper and deeper goes the government into debt to hold the bag. Foreigners very naturally deprecate suggestions that Washington may lower the price it is willing to pay all and sundry for unwanted gold. They do not explain, however, why Washington should continue its costly accumulations for the sole purpose of burying the yellow metal underground.

* * *

Labor news comes thick and fast from many centers. Some is encouraging; most of it isn't. The powerful Lewis faction scores victory after victory. What the upshot of its newly-launched offensive against Ford will be, remains to be seen.

Meanwhile, wage increases are announced daily.

* * *

Railway traffic is almost 15 per cent ahead of a year ago. Power consumption is beyond anything experienced in the boom years. The steel industry is operating practically at full capacity, and although some slackening in new business is reported, unfilled orders on hand are enormous. The automotive industry is assured of a very good year. Railway equipment companies are enjoying a new lease of liveliness; railway purchases are running 100 per cent over last year, 200 per cent over 1935. A big wheat crop is assured. The lumber industry is active. Cotton mills are busy.

Retail trade is called 10 to 20 per cent better than last year. The price level, however, is rising and may restrict consumption by and by. Commodity prices are holding fairly steady after their jolt from the heights reached during the feverish speculation abroad.

Other prosperity signs include gains in telephone installations, the buying of more life insurance, an upward trend in rents and real estate, broadened home building, expansion in total employment and total payrolls.

* * *

Whether the hesitancy in high places, already reflected in falling securities, will reach lower down and bring a summer recession in consumer purchasing cannot be foretold. Nor is there unanimity of opinion as to whether stock quotations have already discounted the worst that is likely to happen.

What can be said very definitely is that the majority of important industrialists and investors favor caution.

(Copyright, 1937, by B. C. Forbes.)

Steel Industry Taxes in 1936

Taxes paid by the steel industry in 1936 were equivalent to a year's pay for 74,500 employes representing an outlay of $169 for each employe on the payrolls of steel companies during the year, according to the American Iron & Steel Institute.

In 1935 taxes equivalent to $134 per steel employe were paid. This represented a year's wages for 55,640 workers.

Wall St. Hears

New York, May 17 (INS)—That earnings of $3.50 a common share are expected for Goodyear Tire (GOR) in the first half.

That common dividends of Maytag Co. (MYG) this year should exceed the 1936 disbursements of 50 cents a share.

That Crown Cork & Seal (CCK) net is running at an annual rate of $6 a share on the common, against $3.54 in 1936.

R. J. CONSIDINE RITES TODAY

Funeral services for Richard J. Considine, 80, Nantasket real estate dealer, were to be held at the home of his daughter, in Hanson, with a requiem mass in the Church of the Holy Ghost, Whitman. He died yesterday in Carney Hospital, South Boston, following an operation.

Mr. Considine was active in Plymouth county Republican ranks for many years and was a permanent resident of Nantasket for the last 15 years.

He is survived by five daughters, two sons, 10 grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

WILLIAM LAPWORTH

Hopedale, May 17—Services for William Lapworth, 93, pioneer manufacturer, will be held from his home on Adin street tomorrow at 2 p. m.

Mr. Lapworth came to this country 67 years ago from England. He was in business in Milford for 50 years and for more than 10 years here. He is survived by three daughters and six sons.

EDWARD O. CLARK

Springfield, May 17 — Funeral plans were being made today for Edward O. Clark, president for 19 years of the Milton Bradley Company, who died of a heart attack yesterday at the age of 63.

IDA C. HALL

Fitchburg, May 17—Funeral rites for Miss Ida C. Hall, 85, sister of Chief Justice Walter Perley Hall of the Massachusetts superior court, will be held from her home on Beacon street tomorrow at 1 p. m. She had lived here for 35 years.

Memorial Rites In Synagogues

Shebuoth services, which were begun on Saturday evening by Greater Boston Jews, continued today and at the Temple Mishkan Tefila memorial services were held with Rabbi Herman H. Rubenovitz speaking on "The Nature of Truth."

Rabbi Louis M. Epstein, who conducted services at the Temple Kahillath Israel in Brookline yesterday, officiated again this morning and Rabbi Joseph S. Shubow held services at the Temple B'nai Moshe in Brighton.

Encyclopedia Acts As Memory for You

And it's undoubtedly true for you'll hear the news of today recalled in conversations, you'll see it recalled in the films and you'll read about it in history books in years to come.

Even by reading the Boston Evening American every day you still can't keep all the information you read in your head. And a stack of newspapers doesn't make for ready, quick reference.

What then?

ONLY FEW PENNIES

The Boston Evening American has the answer and the only expense to you is just a few pennies a day. Isn't it worth it?

The answer is the 15-volume, 1937 edition of the Standard American Encyclopedia, specially printed and bound for the Boston Evening American at an amazing price. In fact, it is really a "give-away" offer.

Perhaps you've been wondering how a set of books can keep up with the world. Here's how: If the books were printed all at once they naturally couldn't accomplish it.

But they are printed one at a time in order to cram more and more history into the entire set—particularly up-to-date history such as the abdication of King Edward, the Texas school disaster, the record breaking cross-country plane flight of Howard Hughes and many other stories.

Here's all you have to do to get these books:

Clip the coupon appearing every day on page 2 of the Boston Evening American. When you have six consecutively numbered, bring them with 44 or 68 cents to any coupon redemption station throughout Greater Boston and secure your book. There are two prices since there are two kinds of bindings being offered. Come and take your choice. It's a sensational offer as you can come and convince yourself.

50 Japanese Killed In Launch Blast

HongKong, May 17 (AP)—The explosion of a boiler aboard a Japanese launch on the waterfront tonight willed perhaps 50 persons and strew bodies over an erea of from 200 yards to a quarter of a mile.

The launch was owned by the Steamship Company Osaka Shosen Kaisha. Every member of her crew was killed. Other victims included numerous Chinese boatmen and passersby in the vicinity.

Parts of several bodies were blown even onto the verandah of the Hongkonk Club from the Queens Pier vicinity, scene of the blast.

Dickinson Gains

Washington, May 17 (INS)—Former Senator L. J. Dickinson, of Iowa, was in a favorable condition after spending a comfortable night night, hospital attendants reported today. He underwent an abdominal operation Saturday.

K. C. HEAD RAPS POLITICIANS

Public standards in the city of Boston and Commonwealth of Massachusetts are low, warns Ernest W. Dullea, grand knight of the Boston Council, Knights of Columbus, who unleashes a barrage at "men who use our religion as a cloak to cover their misdeeds in public life."

Speaking at the annual communion breakfast of the K. of C. at the Hotel Victoria, Dullea said:

"I do not in the slightest degree refer to the present heads of the city and state governments, but the experience of the Irish-Catholic population of Boston has at times in the past been most unfortunate.

"It is regrettable that one of our own faith should have to speak on this subject, but nothing will be gained by an ostrich-like attitude and refusing to face the facts."

Dullea called upon the K. of C., one of the largest single racial and religious groups in Boston, to help elect "only those about whom there can be no whisper of scandal."

Youth, 15, Saves Lives of Three

Roy Kimber of Essex street, Lynn, and two of his children, were alive today due to Roy's 15-year-old son, Walter. The boy saved his dad and two brothers from death by monoxide carbon poisoning.

Walter was taking a bath when he became aware of the fumes. He rushed downstairs to find his father and two brothers, Roy, Jr., 19, and Charles, 17, unconscious.

Throwing open the windows, Walter telephoned to police. When the officers arrived the boy had revived his father and one brother and was working over the other. The three were showing no ill effects today.

Bandits Get $9500 In Gems and Cash

New York, May 17 (INS)—Three armed men entered the hotel room of Sam Kirsh, jewelry salesman, and escaped today with $8000 in diamonds and $1500 in cash after slugging Kirsh unconscious.

Society Rendezvous Burns

early today damaged the Piedmont Driving Club, society rendezvous. Guido Negri, superintendent estimated the loss at between $75,000 and $100,000.

HERE ARE THE FACTS ABOUT THIS GREAT ENCYCLOPEDIA

It Is Modern, Complete and Thoroughly Reliable

One of the five great Encyclopedias of the world, it has been completely revised from A to Z by a staff of eminent educators and specialists under the personal direction of Dean Walter Miller, Professor Emeritus of the University of Missouri, to bring EVERY TOPIC right up to date. The full set contains accurate authoritative, encyclopedia-worthy fact and information on every subject in the entire range of man's knowledge.

It Is Illustrated

More than 5000 modern drawings, diagrams, photographs have been used throughout the 15 volumes to dramatically illustrate and further clarify hundreds of topics in science, geography, history, industry, arts, education. Sixteen full-page colored maps of the world are included.

15 Volumes

The entire work is complete in fifteen great volumes, which can be obtained on the Boston Evening American's convenient and amazingly inexpensive BOOK-A-WEEK plan.

About the Bindings—the Size

A choice of two bindings is offered; the sensationally economical Popular Blue Binding and the thrillingly beautiful Luxury Lifetime Binding. Both bindings were designed by Leonard Mounteney, internationally famous bookbinder; both bindings are made to withstand constant usage; contents, paper, text, illustration and size are identical. Full encyclopedia size, 6⅜"x9⅜".

America Praises Crusade Against Communism

THE MILITANT leadership of the Knights of Columbus in the campaign against Communism has won the gratitude of the American nation.

The time has come to STAMP COMMUNISM OUT OF AMERICA.

The American people NEED LEADERSHIP in this endeavor, and the Knights of Columbus crusade is giving it to them.

Walter I. Plant, District of Columbia deputy of the organization, delivered a tremendously effective address to a nationwide radio audience, pointing to the perils of Communism.

He devoted his speech in part to the Communist agitators, particularly aliens, who are fanning the flames of subversion in America.

He called them "cunning, despicable and practical men bent on the destruction of the nation FOR THEIR OWN PROFIT. They are paid to foment distrust in our government and rebellion against its laws. They make their living beating the masses into a fury over imaginary social ills."

MR. PLANT declared that legislation making such agitation a Federal offense has been permitted by Congress to "smother in committee."

Referring to one such bill, he said:

"It simply states that anyone seeking the overthrow of this government through force or violence is guilty of a Federal offense."

Alien agitators convicted under it would be subject to deportation UNDER EXISTING LAW.

Americans who preach the destructive principles of Communism would be JAILED.

We must have protective laws and ENFORCEMENT OF THEM.

To blast the scourge of Communism we must blast those who PREACH it.

MR. PLANT'S concluding message carried this challenge to the country:

"Let there be no cessation of this battle.

"To back down in this crisis which confronts us would mean the destruction of democracy and the end of our government.

Our Cause Is Proved

BOSTON, nearest American city to Europe, 200 fewer miles to fly, is the practical base for all trans-atlantic air routes. The record-breaking flight of Dick Merrill and John T. Lambie proves it.

Twenty-two hours out of London, thousands of perilous ocean miles behind them, these intrepid airmen ran into impenetrable fog. Below them, above them, before them it was massed. Onward they roared, "blind," trusting to their instruments.

Suddenly an opening in the aerial "floor"—land—buildings—Boston! Aviation experts had said it would be so. It was so.

They passed over Boston, continued on to New York, found New York "shut-in" by fog, then turned back to Boston.

Down to a safe landing at Squantum Naval Base streaked Merrill and Lambie. Field mechanics quickly checked their fuel. And in twenty-two minutes, the fog lifting, the flight was resumed.

Now, surely, is the time for Boston to demand official recognition as North America's air terminal. Our New England Senators and Congressmen should in the interest of the people they represent support our cause.

We must emphasize the fact that a flight from Europe to Boston is 200 miles SHORTER than one to New York.

WE MUST SHOW WHAT EVERY AVIATION ENGINEER KNOWS, THAT BOSTON'S AIRPORT, SURROUNDED ON THREE SIDES BY WATER, IS ALMOST WHOLLY FREE FROM FOG, FLYING'S WORST ENEMY.

Ages before airplanes were built or imagined, Nature made Boston this continent's aerial gateway. Today, oceanic flying a reality, we lack only official recognition.

Sauce for the Goose

LEO T. CROWLEY, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, admonished financial prudence to bankers, but, if executives of non-banking corporations took his sound advice they would be penalized by the punitive undivided corporate profits tax provision.

"Values . . . can fall again, and I believe that a major part of the present windfall should be reserved as corporate savings against just such a contingency."

Mr. Crowley thus epitomized the teachings of economic history.

No one questions the wisdom of what he told the bankers, but, if banks should not squander all their earnings in dividends, why is it desirable for railroads, steel companies and automobile concerns to do so?

Fortunately for Mr. Crowley and for the banks of the nation, financial institutions were exempted from the iniquitous new tax on undivided profits.

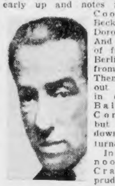
Congress would have been wiser to have spread the exemption to include all corporations.

It can still do so by repealing the unsound tax, which was fallacious in theory and which in practice has brought a disappointing yield in tax receipts.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, May 17—Diary: A patter of rain as day broke. So early up and notes from Joe Cook, Zoe Beckley, and Dorothy Hall. And a hamper of fruit Dick Berlin sent from Florida. Then setting out to drop in on Faith Baldwin in Connecticut but such a downpour we turned back.



O. O. McIntyre

In the afternoon Gene Crawley, a prudent and foreseeing fellow, sat awhile. And came a bewitching lady from an advertising agency interest me with fair speech about a radio broadcast engagement. But I had the good reasoning to say nay and stick to my last.

To a tasty dinner with Will and Jessie Hays at L'Aperitif and heard first hand of their meeting the Pope and Mussolini in Italy. And the way home put in a trans-Lux and tittered so uproariously at Donald Duck as an Alpine climber that many seemed annoyed. So home, feeling weary and so, to bed.

Achmed Abdullah is the only writer of swashbucklers I know who sugests his fictional romances. He is military looking and, with monocle clapped in eye and hat rakishly just so, seems eager and ready for adventure. And he has been in the midst of many excitements both in Central Europe and the Orient.

He was born in Paris, educated in England and is married to the popular literary agent, Jean Wilk. Most romantic fictioneers are shy, bald and squint-eyed, who would look at home on a bookkeeper's stool.

They still talk along the Rialto about the showmanship of James Barton that night this winter when Maud O'Dell, the amorous Sister Bessie of "Tobacco Road," expired between curtains after the first act. Her role was a prominent one and yet Barton, by an amazing touch of ad libbing, held the performance together. So much so the audience did not know death had stalked back stage.

Some of Miss O'Dell's lines were read from the wings. Her understudy, who had been present for the three years in which Miss O'Dell never missed a performance, was given an evening off on the fatal night, shortly after the curtain rose, and could not be found.

Civilization note: A hundred years ago if one missed the stage coach for Philadelphia there would be another along in three days. But today if we miss one panel of a revolving door, we are upset the rest of the day.

There is a now-established cartoonist who will permit no jeers for Texas Guinan in his presence. The cartoonist was doing thumbnail cuts for a newspaper column when Texas wrote in to the editor: "Tell that fellow who illustrates that column to sign his name bigger. He's good."

The artist had been rattling around for years, getting nowhere, when the editor, nudged by the Guinan boost, began to notice him. He was given more important features to illustrate and finally became an editorial page cartoonist with a quick jump to the important money division.

When I read something like this, as I did the other day in a national weekly magazine, I think of the advice of Jessie Rainford Sprague: "The door, a huge, ancient one, swung slowly open, revealing in the dimly lit hallway a shadowy figure of a girl, a wan, tired, care-burdened figure, etc."

It was Sprague who said the first duty of every writer was to watch his adjectives and use them sparingly.

Sprague, a great short story writer, is regarded by editors as the skimpiest of all with adjectives. He sticks to noun and verb, subject and predicate and it is remarkable what forward-running stories he spins.

A psychologist declares that New York has several hundred romanticists who appear to the public as prosaic. And that is true the world over. G. K. Chesterton in England admitted that the Inverness cape which he wore, and the sword cane he carried were because all his life he has hoped to unsheath his sword and rescue a lady in distress.

Bagatelles: Charlie Chaplin cannot talk business to any man behind a desk. His youth was filled with rebuffs over a desk top . . . Paterson Dial, who is writing such dandy fiction, is Mrs. Rupert Hughes in private life . . . Ben Ames Williams works feverishly for three months and rests one . . . Lanny Ross was christened Lancelot Patrick Ross.

If that should occur, could the injury be undone?

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Is young America a cry-baby?

Does it duck the load . . . shift the responsibility . . . care only for fun, freedom and fine feathers?

Elsie Robinson

Martha Richards, of Atlanta, Ga., has heard that it is and does. And Martha is considerably upset over the accusation! So here she comes, in defense of her generation, with a picture of life as it is being lived by millions in 1937.

Reading it, I think back—life in 1897 . . . when no girl dreamed of working, save perhaps in the "Lil' Red Schoolhouse," and a working wife was unthinkable.

Now, according to Martha, the daughter who doesn't give the old folks a hand, or the bride who doesn't add her pay check to her husband's, rates with the Heels and Hobos—and other undesirable grafters! And personally I'm all for giving Martha a big hand, as well as that $10 prize check!

"Dear Miss Robinson:

"All my life I've heard Young America condemned as selfish and careless without regard for parents, our homes or our own marriages.

"Miss Robinson, I challenge any generation to show a better record for courage, hard work, unselfishness and good sportsmanship than ours!

"It is true that there are young people who go on wild parties. But the overwhelming majority of us have neither time for nor interest in such things.

"As for the single boys and girls—nearly always they are helping the old folks as well as saving to make their own dreams come true.

"It isn't easy, Mrs. Robinson. The odds against us are heavy. It means many a heartache and sacrifice. BUT DEEP DOWN WE KNOW THAT IT IS ALL WORTH WHILE, AND THAT WE ARE SETTING A GREAT STANDARD FOR OUR CHILDREN TO FOLLOW.

"Martha Richards, Atlanta, Georgia."

SHE CAN'T AGREE

Great, little sister! But don't blame the oldsters entirely for the jeers and gibes. Here's Young America, itself, criticizing your generation! Says Wilma Evert Steele of Denver, Col.:

"I firmly feel that we are weak as cream-puffs. We use the depression as an alibi, but the truth is we're pampered children, everlastingly talking about our 'bad luck' and calling ourselves 'the lost generation.'

"We can't take real hard labor, in order to get an education. We can't do a tough day's job to feed ourselves, as long as the old folks or the government will assist us.

"We can't face the responsibilities of marriage on a few dollars a week, because it might mean passing up the shows, dances, drinks and cigarettes. We can't take the sacrifice that's necessary to have children.

"Mrs. Wilma Evert Steele,
"Denver, Colorado."

I'm giving you that second $10 prize, Wilma, because I suspect you've started plenty of action—NOT BECAUSE I AGREE WITH A WORD YOU SAY, WHICH I CERTAINLY DO NOT.

THE WRONG VIEW

After which here's a cheerio from a 19-year-old youngster, winner of the $5 prize.

"Don't be afraid of failure" is Bob Vail's slogan . . . and many a gray-haired senator might listen and learn therefrom.

"Dear Miss Elsie:

"Many really intelligent and talented fellows wonder why they stay in one place, at one salary. I think the reason is because they're afraid of failure . . . they haven't the courage to take a chance.

"Get up and go on! Don't quit! Dust yourself off and start all over again, as a fellow does in football! You'll never get anywhere unless you take a chance!

"Robert Keith Vail,
"Randolph Field, Tex."

Each Monday Miss Robinson awards $25 in prizes—$10 each, to the writers of the first two letters published; $5 to the writer of the third.

Writers must be no more than 30 years of age.

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

The favorite American remedy for any national problem is "pass a law." That has been tried in dealing with unemployment. Many laws have been enacted setting up unemployment insurance systems. But already, before operation of many of these programs has progressed past the tax-collecting stage, warnings are being voiced that they are not the panaceas the more hopeful think they are.

Senator Davis of Pennsylvania expresses the fear that under present programs a number of states will find their unemployment insurance plans insolvent a few years after benefit payments begin.

He quotes from an article by A. A. Imberman in Current History a statment that if foreign unemployment insurance experience is any guide, "five state unemployment insurance funds—California, Connecticut, Idaho, Indiana and Wisconsin—will be insolvent by the next depression; 14 state funds—Arizona, Colorado, Louisiana, Ohio, Oklahoma, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, South Carolina, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Texas and Utah—probably will be insolvent.

"Alabama, District of Columbia, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Mississippi, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Oregon, Virginia and West Virginia—will probably remain solvent."

Senator Davis believes in unemployment insurance. But he is afraid many State plans promise more than they will be able to pay. The experience of England to which he has called attention should be considered and heeded.

In a little over eight years, the British Unemployment Insurance Fund piled up a surplus of 21,000,000 pounds. This was wiped out in less than a year by the 1924 depression. And from then on they found they had deficits which mounted as high as 115 million pounds in April, 1933.

Forty-three State Legislatures have met this year. A survey of their activities by the Council of State Governments shows the outstanding feature of their tax legislation is the attempt to retain emergency taxes which were enacted during the depression. Not only have these taxes been retained, but in several instances tax rates have been increased, and new taxes have been levied.

No taxpayer should be surprised when temporary taxes levied to meet an emergency are made permanent. Yesterday's emergency is today's necessity, from the tax-spending viewpoint. Once the tax-spenders open up a new source of revenue, they are not going to leave it until the last dollar has been extracted from it. If any tax were repealed, that WOULD be news.

The Brazilian government has been having trouble with a fanatical cult of horse-worshippers. A sacred horse is their god. At one time or another, members of the human race have worshipped almost every living thing on earth as well as many inanimate objects and almost everything in the heavens above.

Voltaire, the great French philosopher, once said, "If God did not exist, it would be necessary to invent Him." People who do not know of His existence are still creating their own gods.

Modern Spiritualism

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

Mrs. Elizabeth O'Hare, in the world of the spiritualists, has the title, "Elizabeth the Transcriber." She created something of a commotion at the world's busiest corner, Fifth Avenue and 42nd street, in New York, as she paraded up and down bearing a ten-foot sign on which this question was inscribed:

Edwin C. Hill

"Is Joseph Dunninger, the Debunker and Ghost-Breaker, really a Ghost-Breaker or is he ghost-broken?"

There seems to be a perpetual feud between Dunninger and the spiritualists. As a magician and a sleight-of-hand artist, he claims that he is able to duplicate any and all happenings of the seance room which may be attributed to supernatural agencies. He offers $10,000 for proof of a ghost, and professes to be a disbeliever in all unworldly phenomena.

Dunninger seldom misses an opportunity to repeat his challenge to spiritualists. Last month he gave a seance of his own and, among other things, duplicated the feat of Igo Pepitiña, a Mexican medium, who moves inanimate objects from the floor without touching them.

A year or so ago Dunninger invaded a convention of spiritualists in a New York hotel. A celebrated medium, who had come from California for the meeting, was answering questions which had been written on paper and sealed in envelopes. Dunninger interrupted the proceedings by waving a handful of envelopes and asking the man on the platform to tell what was written on the enclosure. The magician was requested to leave as a disturber.

CLAIMED SPIRIT AID

Elizabeth the Transcriber confided to questioners that in her anti-Dunninger parade she was surrounded by a ghostly guard, consisting of the shades of Conan Doyle, Alfred McCann and Rain-in-the-Face. If she had needed further assistance, she would have brought with her, she said, the shades of Abraham Lincoln and Aristotle. She was counting particularly on the ghost of the Sioux chieftain.

"Rain-in-the-Face," she said, "will be president of the United States soon. This will happen when he decides to make a reincarnation."

The beginning of modern spiritualism, which for all the Dunningers has many advocates, came with the "Fox cottage rappings, first proof of the continuity of life."

Like Dunninger, neutral historians and standard reference books insist that these rappings were done by humans, who happened to be two playful and mischievous little girls. However, the spiritualists brush aside all evidence, even a public confession and maintain that the rappings were done by the ghost of a murdered Jewish peddler.

On the night of March 31, the spiritualists gather in the Fox cottage, for they claim the rappings are repeated each year. It was on that particular date in the year 1848 that the Fox family claimed to have in communication with "Mr. Split Foot."

DENIAL CHALLENGED

The cottage had the reputation of being haunted before the Foxes occupied it. They had been in it but a short time when the father, John, and the mother, Margaret, began to hear strange sounds. The children, Catherine and Margaret, in their early 'teens, were not so frightened that they could not name the supposed ghost "Mr. Split Foot" after the devil.

Finally, on the eventful March night, Catherine said:

"Here, Mr. Split Foot, do as I do!" And she snapped her fingers three times. There was a response of three raps. Neighbors were called in, and questions and rappings followed one after the other. A code was worked out to establish the meaning of the knocks. The fame of the Fox children spread wide and far and, with it, belief in spiritualism.

Their older sister, who was married, rushed them off to Rochester for an exhibition. A tour of the United States and trip to Europe followed, all helped along by a controversy between believers and the doubters.

Forty years after the night of March 31, 1848, the Fox sisters, now women past middle age, appeared on the stage of the Academy of Music in New York City and testified that the Fox cottage rappings were a childish hoax. Catherine illustrated how she could produce the rappings with her toes. Margaret described another trick which they had worked on their parents.

They tied apples to strings and from their beds dropped them to the floor. When the mother and father rushed up to the bedroom the apples were drawn up under the covers. To this confession, the believer in the Fox cottage rappings replied that the sisters were forced to make it because they needed money.

On the Nail

By Benjamin DeCasseres

Let us turn from the news that shocks us—burning Zeppelins, the cynical political monkeyshines of the war-lords of Europe and the mad murderers to a simple story of a heroic deed such as this:

Elmer Rice, of the Alberta country, in Canada, hobbled on his artificial leg fourteen miles through bush country to warn a farmer and his family that fire was coming in their direction.

Elmer managed to keep ahead of the fires and arrived just in time to help the family escape, clothed only in gunny-sacks.

Such acts do not make a big dent in the world's history, but they do make dents in the minds of those who keep mental records of HEROIC DEEDS.

Uncle Sam bought these islands from Denmark in 1917 for $25,000,000. The chief industry of the Virgin group, discovered by Columbus on his second voyage, was the making of rum.

Unfortunately for the islands (and for the people of the United States also), prohibition was clamped down on them in 1920. So hard hit were the natives that President Hoover when he visited the islands called them "THE POORHOUSE OF THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE."

But now the islands are back on their feet again, the nights are filled with music and the cares that infest the day are taking it "on the lam."

The cause of this is that Uncle Sam is backing up the chief industry (rum) of the Virgin Islands. Also, we may break even before long on the original $25,000,000 investment.

There is a great deal of news in the papers these days about mind. But you will notice that the professors and others who talk on the subject generally treat the mind as an adding-machine, a sort of hidden fly-paper to catch mere facts.

They quite often leave out the greatest of all mental faculties—the IMAGINATION. The imagination is the telescope of the mind. It can look back two thousand years and see Julius Caesar in Gaul and look forward to any picture of the world you care to conjure up.

The imagination is a magic carpet that can transport you beyond the farthest star or send you down the rabbit-hole with Alice into Wonderland, the domain of the fantastic.

Cultivate your imagination by reading great books, great poems and throwing your whole being into the floods of great music. The beautiful images you create are LIFE-SAVERS in time of storm and stress.

This world, and the spiritual world as well, belong to men and women of IMAGINATION and WILL.

The apple is king in Virginia. The other day 40,000 residents of that state celebrated with music and parades the fruit that Eve handed to Adam in Eden and which produced all our evils, so the theologians say, from the murder of Abel to our income tax.

The common apple has played a strange role in fable and legend—and even in science. Voltaire says that Newton discovered the law of gravitation by seeing an apple fall from a tree while he was loafing. This was a profitable loaf.

Then there was the "Apple of Discord" among the Gods and Goddesses of Olympus. Because Paris gave the apple to Venus the Trojan War resulted.

There were the "Golden Apples of the Hesperides," guarded by a sleepless dragon. Hercules slew the dragon. This was his 12th labor. What he did with the apples is not related.

It is also said that the gods of Scandinavia retained perpetual youth by eating apples—from which, no doubt, comes the belief that "an apple a day keeps the doctor away."

A father's beloved child is called "The Apple of His Eye." There is the "Adam's Apple" in our throats. And why should anything that is just right be said to be in "apple-pie order?" Why not "mince-pie order?"

A survey by military authorities made at Washington shows that there are 55,000,000 men ready for war in 48 nations. Of these Soviet Russia's quota is 19,490,000 OR MORE THAN A THIRD!

Russia has been the loudest in her professions of peace and her calls for "disarmament" have been the most continuous. But she has never prepared for peace or disarmament.

In an emergency, the "Workers' Paradise" can put 40,000,000 men in the field.

With the Soviet's plotters working for a Communist revolution in every corner of the world, that is something for the nations of the world to think about—and THINK FAST.

Bible Text: "It is better to hear the rebuke of the wise men than for a man to hear the song of fools."—Ecclesiastes VII, 15. Suggested by the Rev. Charles L. Sleight, Episcopal Church, South Groveland.
